Wheat for China
Mussolini's New Plan
Ruining an Old Name
Twenty Millions Death Tax

—By Arthur Brisbane—

PRESIDENT HOOVER is conferring with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to find some way of financing the sale of 15,000,000 bushels of wheat to China. China offers to buy the wheat. The question is, whence is the money to come?

In view of the fact that millions are starving in China some way of shifting the wheat from our surplus into starving Chinese stomachs should be found.

We managed to send ten thousand million dollars to Europeans, killing each other, and we shall not get that money back.

If we sent fifteen million bushels of wheat to starving Chinese men, women and children Providence and the farmers certainly would applaud, even if we never got the cash.

Mr. Knickerbocker, studying Europe, sends extremely interesting information to Cyrus H. K. Curtis about Mussolini's plans. He grabs the depression situation by the horns and not gently. There is trouble with the big bank. The Italian government takes charge of it. There is trouble with big industries. Mussolini's government also takes charge of them.

Mussolini is doing in the name of conservatism, capitalism and monarchial government what Stalin is doing for Russia in the name of Communism, Marxism and Sovietism.

Both apparently believe that something better than hit-or-miss individual initiative and free competition are needed.

The ancient market city of Nizhni-Novgorod has been renamed Gorki, in honor of the distinguished Russian writer.

Maxim Gorki's genius deserves any reasonable honor, but Nizhni-Novgorod does not deserve to lose its ancient, romantic name, and Gorki probably will be first to protest against the change.

To Nizhni-Novgorod's great fair traders came from all over Mongolia and Russia. There, the strange creature, Ivan the Terrible, inflicted some of his worst brutalities on men and women, including nuns.

It was bad enough to take from St. Petersburg the name of the Czar who created the city and the power of modern Russia, and name it for Lenin.

To rechristen ancient Nizhni-Novgorod is as bad as it would be to rename Venice "Lagoonville" or rechristen the Taj-Mahal "My Best Girl."

To do a thing well always pays. Attend to your business ably and your business will attend to you.

Dr. John T. Dorrance, able head of a great canned soup company who recently died, evidently knew how to make good soup and sell it. The State of Pennsylvania will collect $20,000,000 as taxes on the property that he left. But taxing a man's success so heavily after death, when the government takes half he earns while he lives, seems a little greedy.

He took nourishment at 6:30 a. m. yesterday (Eastern standard time) for the first time in six days and five hours.

For a man wasted to a shadow by habitual semi-starvation, such a fast must mean serious shortening of life. There is no doubt that Gandhi would have starved himself to death. The wise British know when to give way.

Gen. Von Seeckt, called the "most famous German military strategist," says that since the other nations will not disarm Germany will bring herself up to full military strength and "there is no force on earth that can prevent Germany from becoming a great military power."

That is true; one victory means nothing. France lost in 1870 and won in 1918. Germany lost in 1918, and inevitably will be making another attempt to wipe that out and take back Alsace and Lorraine before the century is half ended, UNLESS human beings suddenly become enlightened and refer national quarrels, as they now refer personal quarrels, to a legal decision.

Not long ago human beings of high position thought it beneath their dignity to refer a quarrel to anything or anybody except their swords. Duels, miniature wars, decided who was right.

Cardinal Richelieu did a great deal to discourage that. Some way should be found to discourage the international murdering, the wholesale duels called "war."

3 MEN FIRED ON IN NEWTON BY TWO IN AUTO

A shooting in which apparently one group of men tried to put the other group "on the spot" caused a furore today in Washington st., Newton, two blocks from police headquarters. It resulted in three men being questioned by police. They gave their names of Dominick Carliguri of Riverdale ave., Newton; his cousin, Bruno Carliguri of Watertown st., Watertown, and Guy Mannarino of Riverside st., Watertown. They said they were driving toward Newton Corners and had stopped at a filling station when a car stopped nearby. Two men in this second car began shooting at them, they claimed.

Ferry Quits; Facey Is Linked to Vote Plot

William R. Ferry of Newton, Prohibition party candidate for Governor, withdrew today following disclosures that Mayor Murphy of Somerville and J. Frank Facey of Cambridge, leading Democrats and both "wets," had a hand in circulating his nomination papers, and that scores of signatures were "faked."

The Ballot Law Commission then made a formal decree removing Ferry's name from the November ballot and leaving the Prohibition party withuot a gubernatorial nominee. Ferry may run on stickers.

FLAYS "DEMAGOGUES"

Ferry's counsel, Florian G. Arey, announcing his withdrawal to the commission said:

"We are thankful for having revealed to us the manner in which demagogues have, altogether without our knowledge, tried to use Mr. Ferry as a cat's paw to draw their own political chestnuts from the fire.

"Neither Mr. Ferry nor his associates can consen to take advantage of such trickery. If he desires to be a candidate to preserve prohibition principles, he will do so on stickers and not under the pretense of a nomination obtained by deception and illegal methods.

"We are not welching, bu we are satisfied that the questioned signatures were obtained through fraud, or not obtained at all."

Dean Homer Albers of B. U. Law School, who led the attack on the signatures, said he wished to have

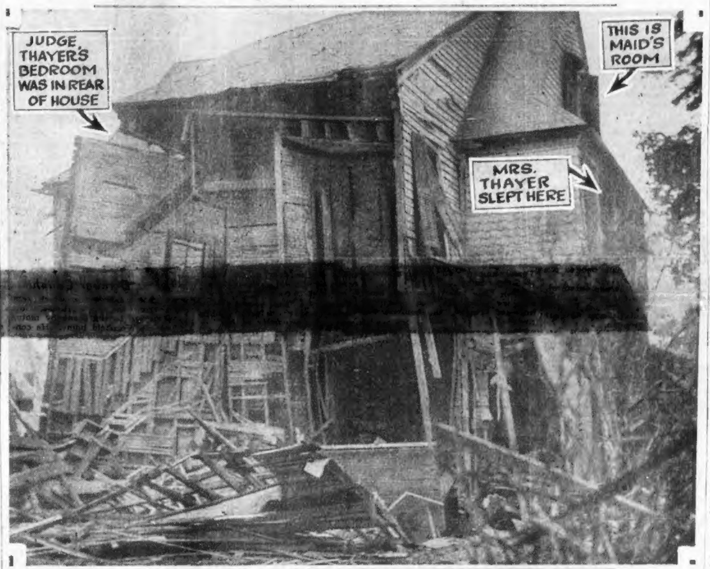
Scant Inches Save Jurist and Two From Death Blast



WHERE JUDGE THAYER, MRS. THAYER AND MAID WERE DURING BOMBING

Bombers who blew the home of Judge Webster Thayer to bits today miscalculated by inches—and only because of this error are the judge, who doomed Sacco and Vanzetti, and his wife and Joan Ashe, the maid, alive today. Had the bomb been planted only a few feet from where it exploded, it might have had a frightful tragedy as its harvest. Judge Thayer slept on the second floor of his home, rear left of photo. Mrs. Thayer occupied a second floor chamber, shown by second window at right. Miss Ashe slept on the third floor. The bomb wrought its chief havoc on the first floor in the center of the house.

Other Stories and Pictures on Pages [illegible] and 18

Worcester, Sept. 27—A bomb, exploding with terrific force, wrecked the home of Judge Webster Thayer, famous Sacco-Vanzetti trial justice, at 4:05 o'clock this morning.

The judge escaped injury. His wife received a scalp wound. A maid, Joan Ashe, 32, suffered from shock and hysteria. They were the only members of the household.

Two men, riding in a New York coupe seen outside the Thayer home at 2 o'clock this morning, are being sought as the bombers.

Judge Almost Buried In His Own Room

The blast demolished the rear of the Thayer home at 180 Institute rd. Falling timbers, doors and plaster trapped the judge, his wife and the maid in their separate rooms.

Judge and Mrs. Thayer were dug out by police and firemen and it was necessary to rescue Miss Ashe over a ladder.

A barn, converted into a two-car garage, in the rear of the house, was completely demolished.

Blast, Like Earthquake, Is Felt for Miles

Neighboring homes in the exclusive West Side section were badly damaged. Windows were blown from houses more than 400 yards distant from the scene of the explosion.

The detonation was felt over an eight mile radius and it caused a tremor many believed was an earthquake.

No fire followed the blast in the house, although gas pipes were ripped apart and twisted and fumes seeped through the

BLAME THIEVES IN $15,000 FIRE

Fire, believed to have been caused by thieves, destroyed "Triple Trees," summer home of Dr. Elizabeth Hubbard, of New York, in Concord ave., near Spring st., Lexington, early today.

Waltham firemen aided Lexington firemen in fighting the blaze which caused damage estimated at $15,000. The house was completely destroyed but a garage and cottage in the rear were saved.

Police discovered these had been broken into, and believe the main house had also been entered, and the fire caused either accidentally or deliberately by the thieves.

Lowell, Fuller, Grant Homes Under Guard

All public buildings, the homes of public officials and of persons who figured prominently in the Sacco-Vanzetti case were ordered under police guard today as a result of the bombing of Judge Thayer's home.

The principal homes under guard are those of former Gov. Alvan T. Fuller and President A. Lawrence Lowell, of Harvard.

Judge Albert Hayden of Roxbury court was also given a special guard and the regular forces at State House and City Hall were increased.

EXTRA HARVARD GUARD

President Lowell was one of Gov. Fuller's famous special commission of three that reviewed the entire case against the radical slayers and found no cause to intervene. Judge Robert Grant and the late Samuel W. Stratton of Technology were the others.

At Fuller's home in Beacon st., a special guard was posted and at President Lowell's home in Quincy st., Cambridge, and at the Harvard yard, the regular Harvard police were augmented by Cambridge plain clothes officers.

A guard was placed also over the home of Judge Grant in Bay State rd. Judge Grant is in Hartford, Conn. today.

HAYDEN THREATENED

Judge Hayden, who has been on the bench at the trial of many reds participating in Sacco-Vanzetti demonstrations, received a threat of bombing a few months ago. Police were assigned to his home in Wayne st.

The home of Lewis McHardy in Pleasant st., Milton, a juror in the case, is also guarded. It was bombed several years ago.

Orders for the Boston police activities were issued by Acting Supt. Goode after a conference with Commissioner Hultman. Capt. Perley Skillings of the Back Bay station, on his own initiative, had already assigned a guard to the Fuller home.

WILL GUARD JURORS

Acting Dist.-Atty. John A. Sullivan of Norfolk County, where a number of key witnesses and jurors in the Sacco-Vanzetti case live, awaited further investigation of the bombing of Judge Thayer's home today.

"If it is established as a fact that this outrage is the work of sympathizers in the Sacco-Vanzetti case, I will order the homes of witnesses and jurors who live in Braintree and Weymouth, placed under guard," he stated.

George C. Strong, Boston and Lexington attorney, against whom disbarment proceedings were brought last year, was arraigned in Newton court today charged with uttering a forged instrument.

Strong, who has been in legal difficulties several times, pleaded not guilty to having forged a check or draft for $750, and was held in $2500 for a hearing Oct. 5.

The government contends that Strong collected $750 from an insurance company after forging the name of Mrs. Bertha Block of 199 Chambers st., West End, and that of her attorney, Harry E. Burroughs, with whom he was then associated.

In May, of 1931, the Boston Bar Association started disbarment proceedings against Strong, charging him with deceit, malpractice and other misconduct.

WORCESTER SHAKEN AS BOMB RUINS THAYER HOME

neighborhood, over which hovered, for a considerable length of time after the explosion, a tremendous dust cloud.

The cave-in of the Thayer garage 30 feet in the rear of the house wrecked two automobiles and fired one, apparently from a short circuit. The fire was quickly extinguished although, for a time, with the escaping gas, it held a fearful menace.

Believe Bomb Put in Rear of House

All three members of the household were asleep in separate rooms when the explosion occured. The judge and Mrs. Thayer were in adjoining bedrooms in the front of the house on the second floor. Miss Ashe was in the maid's room in the finished attic.

Mrs. Thayer's bedroom was nearer the center of the blast force than her husband's chamber and a small sitting room leading off it toward the rear vanished utterly in a mass of fallen walls and timbers.

The bomb apparently was placed under the rear piazza or on a sill of one of the windows in the rear of the house, for its force was most apparent in that area.

Considerable of its force was expended outward in the rear in the direction of the garage. Had it been otherwise, the three in the home must have been killed, in the opinion of Deputy police Chief Herbert W. Merrill. As it was, he considered their escape from death little short of miraculous.

Mrs. Thayer Rescued From Prison in Bed

Patrolman John O. Lang was one of the first on the scene after the blast. He was unable to enter the house through the doors because of fallen debris, and securing a ladder he climbed to the window of Mrs. Thayer's bedroom.

She was still in bed. Three doors and huge chunks of plaster had been thrown on top of her bed and she could not get out. She was bleeding from a cut just above the forehead and was hysterical.

He pulled the wreckage from the bed and dug the debris from the doorway.

Then he, with firemen, accomplished the recue of the judge in the same manner.

Blast Shatters Token of Honor

The bomb shattered a framed resolution of the Worcester County Bar Association tendered to Judge Thayer on Dec. 13, 1926.

It hung on the wall above his bed and the blast knocked it to the floor, shattering its glass face.

The judge was walking about his room, the two doors of which were also blocked. He appeared bewildered from the shock, but his first thought was for the safety of his wife.

Assured that she was not seriously hurt and had been taken to the hospital, he quickly became the coolest figure of the several hundred who gathered at the scene.

City Shaken by Blast; Many Windows Broken

Threatened with death many times since he sentenced Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti to electrocution, and under police guard at long periods over many years, he appeared little alarmed and disturbed now that the threatened violence had become fact.

the quiet calm of the 74-year-old jurist as he walked amid the shambles of his home impressed all who witnessed it. His thinning white hair was tousled, his white moustache slightly bedraggled. His small, wiry frame, drapped in pajamas, moved in and about the wreckage of the house, a fearless figure of a man unafraid of duty and whatever penalty anarchy exacted. After a time he found some clothes and dressed, and being again assured that his wife was all right, he met police and a group of newspapermen on his wreckage-strewn side lawn.

Alert Woman Gives Best Clue to Bombers

Miss Ashe, so far as could be determined at the scene by Dr. Richard J. Shanahan, police surgeon, was not hurt. She was hysterical, however, and was ordered to the City Hospital.

Virtually the entire city was aroused by the detonation and hundreds of phone calls flooded police headquarters.

The best clue—the one outstanding clue to the outrage—was the story told by Mrs. Dorothy Chapin of 276 Highland st., a prominent Worcester clubwoman [illegible].

She said that at 2 o'clock this morning, approaching her home a block distant from the Thayer house, she saw a coupe parked in front of the judge's home. There were two men in it.

She was aware that Judge Thayer's home had been under day and night police guard until a year ago, when police were withdrawn at the request of the jurist, and she thought it wise to note down the registration of the car. She was surprised to notice New York number plates, and memorized the number.

"She communicated her knowledge to police immediately after the explosion and a secret message was sent to New York and to all city police in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut, requesting that a watch be set for the car and that its occupants be taken into custody.

As far as is known, Mrs. Chapin gave no description of the men.

Neither the police nor Judge Thayer [illegible] to lay the [illegible] degree of reason [illegible]

"I [illegible] hate to think," Judge Thayer [illegible] penalty he [illegible]."

Every window in the Thayer home was smashed. Most of the furniture was shattered and all of it was stossed about and tipped over. Hardly a piece of china in the house remained whole.

The stairway leading from the second floor to the attic was blown away. Curtains were in shreds.

Ely Inspects Ruins; Orders Bombers Caught

[illegible] from the State House, Gov. Ely rushed to the scene by motor from his Westfield home. He conferred with Judge Thayer and with Public Safety Commissioner Alfred E. Foote inspected the ruins.

A close friend of the jurist, Frank B. Hall, a Worcester lawyer, accompanied the governor on his trip to the shattered home. The chief executive was visibly affected by what he saw. Turning away from the uuins he told newspapermen:

"Every resource of the Commonwealth has been offered to Mayor Mahoney and the police department to run down the perpetrators of this dastardly crime. Every available means will be used to bring about the punishment of those responsible for such a crime against a man whose services have been devoted, unceasingly, to the ends of justice."

It was thought probable that on Wednesday he would ask the Governor's Council to offer a reward for capture of the bombers.

All possibility of the explosion having resulted from anything but a bomb was removed by the arrival of Capt. Charles A. Van Ambergh, the state police explosive expert.

Capt. Van Ambergh said that, in his opinion, a home-made bomb of steel, containing nitroglycerine, was used. The force of the explosion was too great to have been caused by dynamite, he thought.

Steel "Messengers of Death" in Trees

The expert found several bits of steel imbedded in nearby trees and another larger piece was recovered from a second floor room of a maid in the nearby home of Merrill S. June.

A time bomb, probably equipped with a fuse and a detonating cap that would explode it more than an hour after the fuse was lighted was probable, Van Ambergh said. This made more probable the significance of the story told by Mrs. Chapin about seeing two men near the house two hours before the blast.

All state police barracks were ordered to make an immediate check on explosive stores. The first report resulting was that 12 days ago 97 sticks of dynamite were stolen from Fred L. Tucker, a Baldwinsville contractor, in that town.

Miss Ashe, recovering some of her wits at the hospital, said: "It was so frightful I can't talk about it. I can't even remmeber now what day it is. I'm all in a muddle."

Daniel Armitage of 36 Westland st., two blocks from the scene, found a section of gutter on the roof of his garage. It had apparently been blown there from the Thayer home. There were marks on it which might have been caused by powder flare and he turned it over to police.

At the home of Merrill S. June, 188 Institute rd., nearly all the windows were shattered and glass fell in on the crib of his 20-months-old son, Stephen. The baby was not hurt. June and all members of his household which includes his wife, two sons, Mrs. William T. Carr and Catherine Donovan and Elsie Christiansen were literally blown from their beds.

Sept. 27 Sacco Found Sane

Authorities searching the records for evidence that the date, Sept. 27, is of [illegible] significance among radicals, have so far found nothing beyond this incident that occured on that day.

Woman Block Away Hurt, Homes Damaged

Although a number of persons were bruised by being hurled from their beds or struck by falling plaster, only one outside the Thayer household sustained an injury that required medical attention.

Mrs. Eva Morre, who makes her home at 6 Beechmont st., with Rev. and Mrs. Erick Grimshaw, was cut by window glass blown in on her bed.

Other homes damaged were those of Dr. and Mrs. Almon F. Townsend, Mr. and Mrs. James S. Lamour, Mr. and Mrs. Elwell Dexter, and Frank Berden, all in Beechmont st., diagonally in the rear of the judge's house.

The home of Dr. Albert E. Pero, 31 Germain st., a block distant, was rocked and window glass was shattered. Dr. Pero is a close friend of Judge Thayer and the jurist went to his home after the explosion, being joined there by his son, Hamilton Thayer, who lives in Hopedale.

Some of the judge's earlier calm departed several hours after the explosion and the reaction left him visibly shaken.

The home of Mrs. John Scott Lewis in Institute rd., was badly damaged and some of the clapboards were torn from the outside.

Others in the neighborhood were slightly injured as a result of the blast but none seriously enough to require hospital treatment.

Many sleepers were aroused by the thunderous explosion and showers of plaster from the ceilings.

Reports from all over the city indicated the explosion had been felt and even in the outlying sections, residents flooded the police with questions concerning the blast.

State and local police and the county forces were mobilized in the search for the bombers. Dist. Atty. Edwin G. Norman, on the scene soon after the explosion, said:

"All forces of law in this district will be concentrated on the apprehension of the criminals."

In addition to Capt. Van Ambergh, Capt. Thomas E. Bligh, Julius Toelken, official photographer for the state police, and Perley Charter, state police chemist, came from Boston to aid the local authorities.

The police theory of the bombing is that Anarchists had become aware the judge's home was no longer under guard and that they had watched his movements for some time.

He has been sitting in the civil courts here for the past three weeks and was to have concluded his session today and gone to Boston tonight, to sit in Suffolk Superior Court tomorrow.

Police believe the bombers were aware of this fact and knew today was the last he would be in his home here for some time.

THAYER'S LIFE THREATENED OFTEN

Jurist and Home Guarded Constantly During Sacco-Vanzetti Case

Threats of bodily injury and death have been hurled at Judge Webster Thayer frequently since he came into international prominence by his assignment to preside at the Sacco-Vanzetti trial.

Throughout the long drawn-out trial and subsequent hearings on appeals and motions, the small, elderly judge was constantly guarded and his home surrounded by cordons of police to prevent bombings.

Judge Thayer never showed signs of being affected by the many threats against him. Throughout the lengthy trial, he made his rulings tersely and without hesitation on all legal questions which arose.

DENIED PREJUDICE

Accusations of prejudice brought by supporters of the men brought no response from Judge Thayer and it was not until the motion for a new trial was made that he was able to make known his own personal standpoint.

After the two men were convicted he was forced to cover the entire case over again on the hearing of exceptions.

When the motion for a new trial was heard Judge Thayer denied personal prejudice and insisted he could not find errors in the court record. He declared the men had received a fair trial and that, although circumstantial evidence played a large part in the case, the radical affiliations of the two men had nothing to do with their conviction.

MILITIA ON GUARD

In Boston tremendous feeling was created and at one time the city resembled a military camp with militia and police patrolling to prevent outbreaks of violence.

Even before the case Judge Thayer was well known in legal circles for his watchful attitude in the courtroom. He often called attorneys to order when, in his opinion, they were not conducting cases properly. His decisions and rulings were always marked by concise and vigorous language. He was appointed to the Superior Court bench in 1917.

Previous to his appointment to the bench Judge Thayer devoted much time to politics and fraternal activities. He also maintained an interest in sports, which started in his early boyhood and through his college career at Dartmouth.

Born in Blackstone in 1857, he spent the greater part of his life in Worcester. He was educated in the Blackstone public schools and moved with his family to Worcester in 1874.

COLLEGE DIAMOND STAR

After a course at Worcester Academy, he entered Dartmouth and was graduated in 1880. In college he was captain of the baseball team for three years, piloting his team to the first victory Dartmouth ever scored over Harvard. He was a member of Psi Upsilon and prominent in undergraduate activity.

After working with his father for a time in the wholesale meat business, he started the study of law in a Worcester office. He was admitted to the bar in 1882 and was nominated registrar of deeds in 1887 and mayor in 1894 on the Democratic ticket.

In 1889 he was elected to the board of aldermen, being the youngest man to hold that position in the city's history. He was also secretary of the Worcester County Bar Association for many years.

He is a member of the Odd Fellows and the Ancient Order of United Workmen. He is also a member of the Worcester Country Club, the Worcester Sportsmen's Club and the Worcester Athletic Club.

Coincidence in 2 Bombings

Officials today noted the coincidence in the times of the bombing of the homes of Judge Thayer and Louis McHardy, Sacco-Vanzetti juror.

McHardy's house in Milton was wrecked at 4 o'clock in the morning. The explosion at Judge Thayer's home took place at 4:05 a. m.

The Daily Herald today states that the quarrel between Carol and Helene over the future of their son, Crown Prince Michael, has broken out again.

The princess, according to the newspapers, wants Michael to remain in Britain for schooling and later to enter the British navy, and in this wish is supported by the British royal family.

MANY KILLED IN HURRICANE

San Juan, P. R., Sept. 27 (AP)—At least 41 persons are known to have been killed in a hurricane that struck this island last night at 11 o'clock and raged till 2:30 a. m. today.

The property damage is believed to be greater than that of the hurricane of Sept. 12, 1928, worst this island has ever known.

Hundreds are injured and thousands homeless.

In this city the loss of life was materially reduced by police, who rounded up hundreds of women and children at their homes and placed them in the more substantial church and school buildings.

DEATH LIST GROWING

The villages, mostly of flimsy homes, had no such protection. Even in San Juan hundreds of homes were unroofed and flooded.

Reports up to noon gave the following death toll:

Barrios, 14; Sabanallana, 4; Carolina, 10; Caguas, 1; Catano, 2; Rio Piedras, 10.

Various reports from the last named town placed the death toll there as high as 40, with seven members of one family killed in their home. Rio Piedras is about five miles east of San Juan, directly in the path of the storm.

800 HOMES DESTROYED

Nearly 800 houses out o fabout 1000 on the San Juan waterfront were destroyed.

The hurricane swept the citrus fruit district, and it appeared the entire crop, with an estimated value of $7,000,000, would be a complete loss.

Governor Beverley inspected the devastated area.

When he returned he called a meeting of citizens and ordered Adjt.-Gen. John A. Wilson to call out 400 National Guardsmen to assist the police in the city and vicinity.

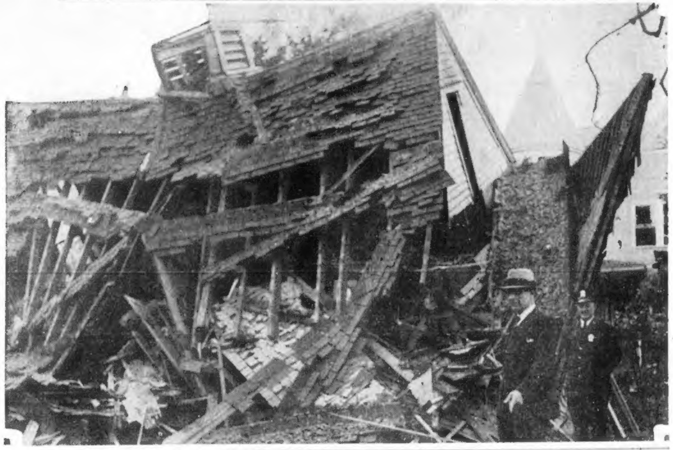
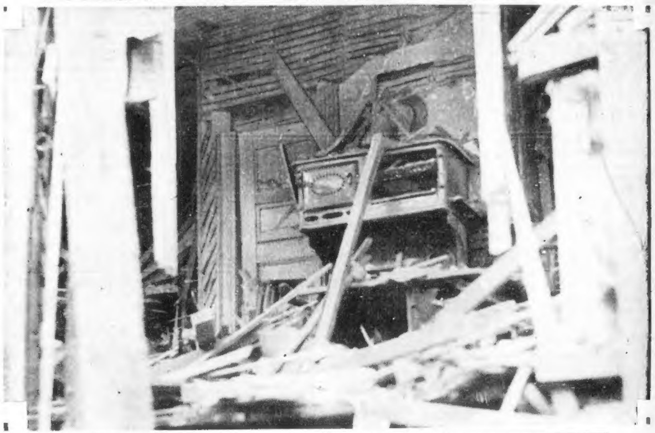
VIEWS OF RUINS SHOW POWER OF BLAST AT JUDGE'S HOME



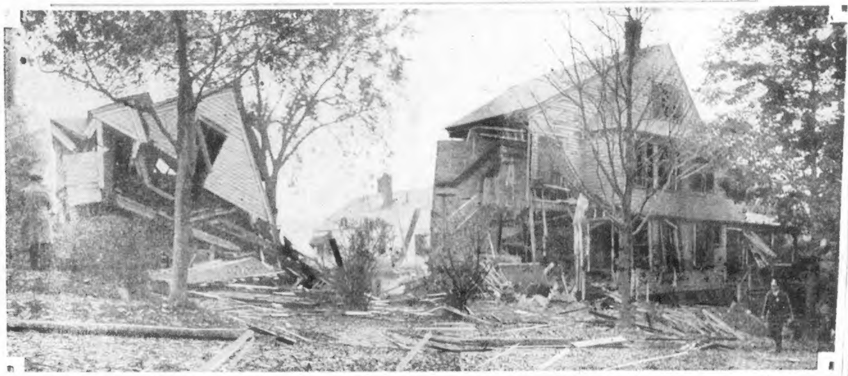
THIS MASS OF TANGLED WRECKAGE WAS ONCE A GARAGE

So powerful was the blast which wrecked the Worcester home of Judge Webster Thayer, that a barn in the rear of the house, used as a garage, was completely demolished by its force. Two cars which were housed in the barn were crushed under the ruins. Only the fact that much of the force of the bomb was expended outward saved judge, his wife and a maid from death.



ONLY THE STOVE SURVIVED BLAST IN THAYER KITCHEN

Here is another vivid picture of the tremendous force of the blast which wrecked Judge Thayer's home. The walls, ceiling and floor of the kitchen were reduced to a pile of wreckage. Only the stove remained without being completely destroyed. The escape of Judge Thayer, his wife and their maid is regarded as miraculous in view of the enormous damage caused by the blast. Police believe Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers, resentful of Judge Thayer's part in their trial, are responsible.



PANORAMA OF THE HAVOC WROUGHT BY BOMB THAT LAID THAYER HOME AND GARAGE IN RUINS

Ely Pledges to Punish Bomb Hurlers; Lauds Thayer

Gov. Ely announced at his Westfield home today that he would confer with his Council relative to the posting of a reward for the capture of persons involved in the bombing of Judge Thayer's home. The governor said:

"If the explosion at Judge Thayer's home proves to have been the result of a plot engineered by persons seeking vengeance for any judicial decision made by him, it is a dastardly crime and one that shall be prosecuted by every agency of the law in this State.

"I have known Judge Thayer for many years and have tried many cases before him. He is one of the ablest and fairest jurists on the bench, strong in his convictions and with unlimited courage.

LIGGETT SEEKS RENT SLASH

Unless landlords will co-operate by granting substantial reductions in rent, the Louis K. Liggett Co. which operates a chain of 555 drug stores throughout the country, is faced with drastic reorganization it was learned today.

The demand for rent reductions was made public in a letter to all Liggett landlords by George Gales, president of the company.

Jurist and the Home That Bombers Tried to Make His Death Trap

TARGET OF RADICAL BOMBERS

Judge Webster Thayer, who gained world-wide prominence as presiding judge in the Sacco-Vanzetti case, has been threatened many times by radicals who accused him [illegible] prejudice in the trial of the two men sentenced to death for murder. Judge Thayer was appointed to the superior court bench in 1917.

JUDGE'S HOME BEFORE BLAST WRECKED IT

After countless threats had been made against it, Judge Thayer's home, at 180 Institute rd., Worcester, was partially wrecked by a blast early today. It is believed that a bomb was tossed through a window in the rear of the house by radicals who sought revenge on Judge Thayer for his part in the Sacco-Vanzetti case. A car was reported speeding from the scene just as the blast aroused the entire countryside. The fact that Judge Thayer was sleeping in the front of the house probably saved him from death. SACCO-VANZETTI CASE STIRS WORLD WITH VIOLENCE

7-YEAR LEGAL BATTLE IS RECALLED

Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti were first arrested May 5, 1920, in connection with the murder, April 15, in South Braintree, Mass., of F. A. Parmenter, paymaster of a shoe factory, and Alessandro Berardelli, the guard accompanying him.

Sacco and Vanzetti were two Italians who had migrated to the United States in 1908. One was a shoe worker, the other a fish pedlar.

They were brought to trial May 31, 1921, before Judge Webster Thayer of the Massachusetts Superior Court. On July 14 both were found guilty by verdict of the jury.

The verdict was disputed by Socialists and radicals on the ground the two men had not received a fair trial because of their radical affiliations.

A motion for a new trial on the grounds the two prisoners had not been positively identified by witnesses, failed. Further motions for new trials were made from time to time also failed on the grounds that the evidence offered did not warrant a reopening of the case.

THAYER DENIES RETRIAL

On Nov. 18, 1925, Celestino Madeiros confessed he had participated in the fatal holdup, and said neither Sacco nor Vanzetti was present.

Judge Thayer after hearing this denied a retrial and claimed Madeiros, already sentenced to death for another crime, was motivated in assuming the guilt in the hope that his giving testimony in the case would delay his execution.

A motion of appeal to the Massachusetts State Supreme Court failed when the court took the stand that the trial judge had the final power of determining the matter of a retrial on grounds of new evidence.

PROTESTS FAR AND WIDE

On April 9, 1927, Judge Thayer sentenced Sacco and Vanzetti to death in the electric chair.

At this point a storm of protest broke loose and newspapers all over the world gave great publicity to the proceedings. Mass meetings were held and high officials flooded with petitions, mingled with threats.

The defense took the case to Governor Fuller on May 4. Vanzetti himself made the appeal for stay of sentence and inquiry into the trial. The Governor granted the plea for inquiry.

Besides investigating personally the Governor enlisted the aid of President Lowell of Harvard University, President Stratton of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Robert Grant, a former judge.

DECIDE AGAINST ACCUSED

On Aug. 3 Governor Fuller announced that he had found against the plea and that his advisory committee had reached the same conclusion and a new trial was not warranted.

Successive stays delayed the execution while vain pleas were made to Judge Thayer, to the supreme judicial court, and finally to members of the United States supreme court, the attorney-general and President Coolidge.

During the days following Judge Thayer's denial of clemency demonstrations were made in numerous cities in this country and abroad.

Bombs were exploded in New York and Philadelphia and guards had to be set up when other threats of violence were made by sympathizers of the condemned men.

Finally, on Aug. 23, 1927, Sacco and Vanzetti were electrocuted. They maintained they were innocent to the end.

Mrs. Evans Doubts Any Sacco Plot

Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers had no connection with the bombing of Judge Thayer's home, Mrs. Glendower Evans, Boston society woman and philanthropist who assisted in the defense, declared today.

Informed of the explosion, Mrs. Evans said:

"It had nothing to do with the Sacco-Vanzetti case."

Miss Jessica Henderson of Wayland, who also was active in the defense of Sacco and Vanzetti, said:

"Today's date has no significance in Sacco-Vanzetti history. The men were executed Aug. 22.

MRS. GLENDOWER EVANS

No one in the Sacco-Vanzetti case could possibly have done such an act. It must have been the work of some crazy man."

Julian S. Codman of the Civil Liberties League which was prominently identified with the Sacco-Vanzetti defense said:

"There are apt to be cranks around who would do most anything."

"The real friends of Sacco-Vanzetti had nothing to do with this outrage," Atty. William G. Thompson, one of the defense lawyers in the famous case, said today when informed of the news.

"I deplore such an abominable act. As everyone knows, Communists have been capitalizing on the Sacco-Vanzetti case."

MRS. JESSICA HENDERSON

Long Series of Bombings in Wake of Sacco Verdict

Today's suspected bombing of Judge Thayer's home at Worcester was one in a long series connected with the Sacco-Vanzetti case.

These bomb outrages began May 17, 1926, when an explosion occurred at the home of Peter A. Jay, U. S. ambassador at Buenos Aires, Argentina.

On June 1, 1926, one of the most serious of the bombings occurred when the home of Samuel Johnson, a brother-in-law of Mrs. Simon Johnson, a State witness in the case, was destroyed at West Bridgewater.

MAIL DYNAMITE TO FULLER

On May 10, 1927, postal authorities at the Burlington ave. parcel post station, Back Bay, Boston, a package containing a pound of dynamite, addressed to the then Gov. Alvan T. Fuller, was detected in the U. S. mails.

Attached to the package with a piece of wire was a note reading:

"I have succeeded in getting one-quarter ton of this. If Sacco and Vanzetti going to be murder. I am going to get more and use it. (Signed) A citizen of the world."

The next bomb outrage associated with the famous murder case came July 19, 1927, when a bomb was thrown at the U. S. consulate in Nice, France, but no one was injured.

JUROR'S HOME ATTACKED

Next in the series was probably the worst of all, the wrecking of the home of Lewis McHardy in East Milton. McHardy was one of the 12 jurors whose vote in Superior Court, Dedham, resulted in the death sentence being passed on the two Italian murderers. This outrage had the entire population of the community by the ears. The American Legion went to the assistance of the family after their home had been wrecked.

The home of Robert Elliott, who threw the death switch at State Prison, Charlestown, that sent Sacco and Vanzetti to eternity was bombed during the early morning of May 18, 1928.

The house, located in Queens Borough, Long Island was wrecked. The front porch was torn away, front door blown in and every window in the house shattered.

Elliott, his wife and two children was thrown from their beds by the concussion, but were not injured.

During the year 1927 there were four bomb explosions in New York subway and another in a Philadelphia church that were laid to sympathizers of Sacco and Vanzetti.

THAYER IS KEPT FROM BENCH

Worcester, Sept. 17 (AP)—Judge Thayer was unable to take his place on the bench in Superior Civil Court, where he has been presiding, today, and Judge James C. Donnelly took his place. Judge Donnelly dismissed the jurors who have been serving under Judge Thayer and adjourned the court until next Monday.

In dismissing the jurors, Judge Donnelly said:

"I know that if Judge Thayer was here, he would want to thank you for the service you have rendered as jurors.

"Doubtless, you have heard of the ordeal which he experienced early this morning, so I am going to thank you for him. Such an experience brings the realization of danger which sometimes lurks when one does his duty, though it is not a pleasant one, in public service."

BLAST OF JUDGE THAYER'S HOME TAKEN FOR QUAKE

"There was an explosion that rocked headquarters. My attention was also attracted by papers flying in the street. At first we thought it was an earthquake and then calls started to come into headquarters. Some people thought the Worcester Polytechnic College had blown up, others thought it was Holy Cross."

BUILDING SHAKEN

Lieut David Whalen, on duty at headquarters:

"There was a terrible crash. Headquarters rocked. I thought that something was the matter with the building. I hurried to the telephone switchboard where I found Officer Dumas getting scores of calls. I sent the ambulance to the scene and notified the other four stations to send every available man. Several officers off duty who heard the explosion called into headquarters and offered their services for volunteer duty."

Sergeant Detective Theodore Gaulett, on duty in the detective bureau.

PAPERS FLY IN STREET

"I was at my desk when the crash came. It seemed as though the explosion occurred in our building or some building nearby. For a moment it appeared as though our building was going to collapse. Every section of it seemed to move. I saw papers flying all over the street. At first I believed there was an earthquake."

Ralph Coon, on duty as night telephone operator at Memorial Hospital, where Mrs. Thayer was taken:

"I felt a terrible jar. Several nurses rushed to the telephone room and wanted to know what happened. In a few minutes the Worcester police ambulance came into the hospital yard with Mrs. Thayer."

Dr. Thomas J. O'Brien of 4 Newton ave., Worcester, who lives about a mile from the scene of the explosion:

"I was sleeping when the explosion threw me out of my bed. I was uninjured, but my first thoughts were for members of my family. I thought positively that there had been a quake. The explosion aroused the entire neighborhood on my street. For a time I was in a daze."

Dr. Frank L. McGoon, of 22 Franconia rd., who also lived about a mile from the scene of the blast:

"I was awakened by a frightful crash. I thought that my own home had been the scene of an explosion. It seemed as if the entire city had exploded."

Mrs. B. W. Eames, 176 Institute rd.:

"I was suddenly aroused by a frightful noise. Both Mr. Eames and myself hurried to the windows. Many were broken. I first saw clouds of smoke and dust. I knew that something dreadful had happened. I could see neighbors rushing out of their homes. It seemed that every house in the vicinity was wrecked. We first believed it was an earthquake, but no damage was done to the streets, and I was then convinced it was an explosion. I saw them taking Mrs. Thayer away in the ambulance."

"Nature in the Raw is seldom MILD"

THE RAID ON THE SABINE WOMEN
"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by Saul Tepper...inspired by the story of the Roman warriors' ruthless capture of the Sabine village for the express purpose of carrying off its women (290 B. C.).

—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes

They are not present in Luckies ...the mildest cigarette you ever smoked.

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

"It's toasted"
That package of mild Luckies

"If a man write a better book, preach a better sermon, or make a better mouse-trap than his neighbor, tho he build his house in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to his door."—RALPH WALDO EMERSON.
Does not this explain the world-wide acceptance and approval of Lucky Strike?

SMITH REFUSES TO PAY BILLS OF BRIDE

New York, Sept. 27—Al Smith, Jr., and his wife apparently have come to a parting of the ways.

The oldest son of the former governor has informed the New York Edison Company that he will not be responsible for future bills incurred by his wife. He has written similar notifications to other firms where he has charge accounts. And a "private agreement" is understood to have been reached.

All this was revealed by Mrs. Smith, daughter of a New York Central locomotive engineer, but she denied any intention of applying for a legal separation.

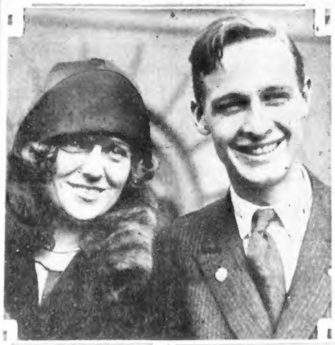
The letters, she explained, were written because her husband "thinks I've been too extravagant." He was absent from their apartment of lower Fifth ave, because "he's been out of town."

But at the law offices of Curtin and Glynn, where Al, Jr., has been an associate attorney, callers were told he was in court.

First of the former governor's sons to wed, Al, Jr., went through two marriage ceremonies within a week.

He was a law student at Fordham University when he met blonde Bertha Gott at the Syracuse State Fair in September, 1924. A month later they were married secretly at Borough Hall in the Bronx.

AT PARTING OF THE WAYS



Alfred E. Smith, Jr., oldest son of the former Democratic standard bearer, and his wife, who have apparently reached the crossroads in their marital journey. Young Smith has given notice in New York that he will no longer be responsible for her debts. They married eight years ago after a short courtship while Smith was a student.

SIMON TARGET IN CRISIS

London, Sept. 27 (INS)—The crisis threatened in the cabinet of Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald by the expected resignation of his leading Liberal ministers was aggravated today by a demand that Sir John Simon step down from the post of foreign secretary.

Sir John's handling of foreign affairs is under fire.

$35,000 BLAZE IN DERBY, VT.

Derby Center, Vt., Sept. 27 (AP)—A general store, combined with a garage and woodworking shop, was destroyed by fire early today with a loss of $35,000.

Three automobiles in the garage were burned and nothing but the sales book was saved from the store.

The fire was discovered by two Massachusetts motorists who ran short of gas in front of the store. Unable to rouse the storekeeper, they were going to a nearby house when they saw the fire in the basement of the building. The property was owned by A. St. Francis and was covered by $9000 insurance.

Many Are Hurt in N. Y. Ferry Crash

New York, Sept. 27 (AP)—Several passengers on the West Shore ferry, Utica, were injured when the craft, inbound from Weehauken, N. J., crashed into its slip at the foot of 42nd st., early today.

Two of the ferry passengers were taken to a hospital suffering shock and hysteria. Ambulance physicians attended the others. About 100 passengers were aboard the ferry.

Rescuers of "Flying Family" Go on Strike

Aberdeen, Scotland, Sept. 27 (AP)—The crew of the trawler Lord Talbot, which rescued the "Flying Hutchinsons" in Greenland, were reported today to have gone on strike, claiming a bonus from the owners for the rescue. They also demanded longer shore leave as a reward. The trawler has sailed for Greenland with a new crew.

Serbian Earthquake Does Heavy Damage

Belgrade, Jugoslavia, Sept. 27 (AP)—A severe earthquake which caused considerable property damage and much panic was described in reports reaching here today from Valandovo, Kavadar, Demirkapu and Gewgeli, South Serbia.

Mob Is Freed After Demanding Food

Victoria, B. C., Sept. 27 (AP)—Forty-three men arrested last week when they entered a cafe in Prince George and demanded free food were acquitted of charges of unlawful assembly. Grounds for prosecution, under British Columbia law, were removed when the cafe owner testified he was not alarmed by the demonstration.

Bargain, in Executions

Trenton, N. J., Sept. 27 (AP)—William S. Gilbert wants to save the state some money. He wrote Governor Moore he would serve as the state's executioner for $300 a year. He estimated the present executioner received $175 for each execution.

U. S. BALLOONS WIN CUP RACE

Basel, Switzerland, Sept. 27 (AP)—American entries in the Gordon Bennett cup race, which began here Sunday between 16 balloons, appeared today to have won the race.

The "Goodyear 8," one of the American bags, piloted by W. T. Van Orman, landed near Kaunas, Lithuania, at 8:30 a. m., today, and the U. S. Navy balloon, piloted by Lieut. E. G. W. Settle and Wilfred Bushnell, landed at Wasjule, near Vilna, on the Polish-Latvian frontier at 10 a. m., today.

All other balloons, representing various European countries, had landed yesterday.

Van Orman's distance had not been computed officially, however. The following distances were credited to three of the balloons which landed yesterday: "Polonia," Polish, 1176 kilometers; Petit Mousse, French, 1233 kilometers; L'Aventure, French, 963 kilometers.

'3 FACES EAST' AUTHOR SUICIDE

New York, Sept. 27 (AP)—Anthony Paul Kelly, who wrote "Three Faces East," has "gone West," leaving a note of despondency and attributing his suicide to an incurable lung ailment. He was found asphyxiated in a small apartment, and there was a short letter addressed to the police and beginning: "This is a plain case of suicide."

Following the production of "Three Faces East," which was a stage hit of more than a decade ago, Kelly became a successful scenario writer in Hollywood. Illness interrupted his activities and he had written nothing for several years.

With his note he left a sum of money to pay his hotel bill and a $20 bill which he asked be used for some police charity.

JUDGE'S ACTION IN ROAD LABOR CASE UPHELD

Characterization of Judge Nathan Washburn of Wareham court last week at the Governor's Council meeting as "high-handed and arbitary" was unjustified, Robert G. Dodge, president of the Boston Bar Assn., declared today, in turning the matter over to the Massachusetts Bar Assn.

The characterization was by Lieut.-Gov. William S. Youngman and Councillor James H. Brennan in connection with a warrant hearing before Judge Washburn on an alleged violation of the labor laws by a contractor who refused to employ two war veterans on Wareham road construction work.

WARRANT REFUSED

It was alleged by the State Department of Labor that Judge Washburn refused a continuance a week ago Monday and turned down the application for a warrant, although the department was not represented at the hearing.

In clearing the judge, Atty. Dodge said in a letter to Secretary Frank W. Grinnell of the Massachusetts Bar Assn:

"At a meeting of the executive committee of the Boston Bar Assn. today the clerk of Judge Washburn's court attended at my request and produced the records of the case in question.

ACTION UPHELD

"On the face of the papers and on the clerk's statement, the judge's action would appear to have been entirely proper. The whole matter seems, however, to fall outside the jurisdiction of the Boston Association, and the committee voted that I should call the matter to the attention of the Massachusetts Association, with the suggestion that it cause an investigation and report to be made.'

$100,000 DAVIS FUND TRACED

New York, Sept. 27 (INS)—A $70,000 list and a $30,000 loan without interest today were offered as the explanation for $10,000 traced into the accounts of U. S. Senator James J. Davis at the "lottery" trial of the director-general of the Loyal Order of Moose.

The Government charges the $100,000 was part of $173,000 obtained by Davis from the proceeds of two "lottery" charity balls.

Fred W. Jones, financial agent for Davis, testified regarding the $100,000 which was used to reduce a $150,000 note endorsed by the defendant.

Jones said that after he and Joseph Jenkins had purchased the contract for organizing the Moose from Davis for $600,000 in August, 1930, they found the membership drive was suffering from the effect of the charity ball campaign.

The charity ball was financed through the "propagation department" of the Moose, headed by Theodore Miller and Bernard C. McGuire, both of whom are under indictment.

Jones testified Miller gave $70,000 from the "propagation department" on Jan. 6, 1931, to the "organization department" because of the effect that promoting the charity ball was having on the drive for new members.

Jones said that Miller also gave a loan of $30,000 to the "organization department" and didn't want any interest.

This $100,000 was used, Jones said, to pay off part of a loan on a $150,000 note guaranteed by Davis.

THE VOICE OF Broadway

By Louis Sobol

Snapshots at Random!

A top-heavy week for Broadway with a series of stage and screen premieres, two night club and three snooty speakeasy openings . . . It was all very gay and in some instances rowdy in the polite manner . . . One of the newer speaks located in the increasingly swanky East Side of town in the 50's flung its doors open apologetically Thursday night to let the clamoring Broadwayites and Park Avenueites in—apologetically because the painters and carpenters were still busily at work . . . It was here that Lou Holtz came over to my table to explain the rift between him and the Messrs. Schwab and Mandel and to point out the innocent intent of his misinterpreted remark in Pittsburgh . . . George Sanchez, the Cuban sugar millionaire, danced by with Helen Morgan, and Leo Friede hovered solicitously over the sloe-eyed Edna Lambert . . . At a table in front of the orchestra platform sits the Broadway beauty, Lois Wild, and the bronzed Apollo, Buck Grundy, who has proposed to her on the average of once a day, holidays included, for the past six months . . . Friday night marked the reopening of the El Patio with genial Emil Coleman and his mellow orchestra missing for the first time in the club's history . . . Instead there was the popular and handsome Henry King, a lad much to the ladies' delight, they tell me . . . Chick Endor and Charlie Farrell, gay carollers, pour out their collection of new and old satirical ditties, and Frances Maddux warbles throatily . . . Ramon and the famed beauty, Rosita, weave through a series of sinuous dance patterns and then we have our first opportunity to look around and spot people whose names mean something in columns like this . . . Jack Dempsey starts to leave, flanked on each side by a beautiful girl—one, Hope Dare, I am assured by a whispering gentleman, is now Dempsey's official fiancee—the other, Lee Wiley, not a fiancee but a lass of beauty . . . Lilyan Tashman titters over a remark by Edmund Lowe and as we turn to Queenie Smith sitting opposite her husband, Robert Garland, the dramatic critic, Chick Endor, flops into a seat by our side and chirps, "Well, I certainly saw enough of Europe on this last trip, but give me good old New York, any time," by no means an original observation but it inspires me to remark brightly, "Chick, you're becoming a full-fledged cosmopolite," which Endor receives rather dubiously and finally murmurs weakly, "I don't know much about those Greek societies" . . . At another table, Gloria Vanderbilt and Harry Cushing, 3rd, and I presume it is only a matter of time now before they become Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cushing, 3rd, with an elaborate wedding in an elaborate church with a streamer carpet from the curb right up to the threshold.

Sunday night, a week ago, Cab Calloway returned to the Cotton Club and as I told you earlier in the week, most of Broadway turned out . . . It's become the custom at these openings for a master of ceremonies to step out and introduce the celebrities and I, for one, would like to sponsor a move to abolish the practice . . . At the Cotton Club, Sunday night, for instance, after such people as Jack Dempsey, Sophie Tucker, Bert Wheeler, Abe Lyman, Helen Morgan, Ethel Shutta, George Olsen, Lilyan Tashman, Belle Baker, Janet Reade and others were introduced, Dan Healy turned wearily to his long list and began reading off the names of half a dozen newspapermen, a Broadway restaurateur, a Broadway druggist, a lawyer, an alderman, a booking agent and so on all the way down the line, omitting only the colored porter and the hat-check gal . . . Saturday night, I drift into a famous Village rendezvous and here I find such peace and contentment as made me hope that prohibition might not be eliminated after all for, with the return of liquor, places like this would have to go . . . So I sit sipping a brandy-old fashioned and gradually there steal into the room, the soft, soothing strains of a violin melody and then just as gradually a voice from the opposite side of the room comes crooning softly, gradually gaining in volume until the full, clear notes of an exquisite soprano ring out . . . So I look and there is Jeanne Aubert, the French songstress, emptying her heart of its melody . . . From another table, a lad leaps up, seizes a violin from a musician and joins in the impromptu entertainment . . . Bernard Sobel, one of the town's newest dramatic critics . . . A blonde girl waits until Aubert is finished and starts singing, "What Have You Got to Have, That I Haven't Got to Give," whereupon Aubert joins in and soon the entire room is singing . . . A lass limps over to us and our heart tightens . . . Frances Faye, once gayest of the gay of the night club entertainers . . . Almost nine months, I learn, she's spent in the hospital and in a wheel chair, crippled by a mysterious ailment . . . She's on the road to recovery now and assures me that she'll back to the piano, pounding out lively tunes and singing, having been re-engaged by Barney Gallant for his night club when it reopens next month . . .

Thursday night we cab down to the river front on East 52d st. and descend in a tiny elevator to sea level to inspect another new night spot...A place called the Mayfair Yacht Club catering, I gather, to the town's lorgnette set...From where I sit, I gaze out through the open windows and watch the waves of the river billow and swing like the hips of a Minsky strip-gal...River craft float by and sound out their raucous litany...Out on the terrace a couple sit, her head nestling on his shoulder, oblivious to the fact that they can be plainly seen from inside...A well-setup gentleman with a neatly trimmed beard smiles absently, Sir Hubert Wilkins, and on the dance floor George Wrangel, the Journal's Billy Benedick, dances a rhumba with a smiling, gracefully tall girl...Monday night at the opening of "Lilly Turner" at the Morosco Theater...the blonde, dry-voiced Dorothy Hall as a medicine show gal...George S. Kaufman, clever young New Yorker of the theater and newspaper world, walks down the aisle...He stops midway to chat with Judith Anderson and I catch none of the conversation which I shouldn't anyway, it being none of my business, but one remark floats out clearly...The Anderson gal chuckles softly andd chirps, "Yes, if you set it to music," which lures the suspicion of a chuckle from Kaufman...Outside, during intermission, the tall figure of Rube Goldberg, hatless...Just off the curb, Morris Gest, a bit plumper, waving his hands and talking to a small group.

WILSON FOR MAYOR

Rumors are again in circulation at City Hall that former City Councillor Robert Gardiner Wilson, Jr., a Republican, will be candidate for mayor next year. He represented Ward 17, Dorchester, in the Council, and has a host of friends in all sections of the city.

NORTON IS BOOMED

City Councillor Clement A. Norton of Hyde Park, political boss of that section, is another of those mentioned as possible candidates for mayor. He is also very popular and, like Wilson, is a brilliant orator.

KELLY THANKS ALL

City Councillor Francis E. Kelly of Ward 15, Dorchester, unsuccessful candidate in the recent campaign for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor, has so many friends to whom he must express appreciation for support that he has been compelled to obtain the assistance of two typists in order that letters may go out within a reasonable time. Although defeated, Kelly received one of the largest votes ever given a young man in a fight for nomination to a state office.

"DRY" TICKET SOUGHT

Oscar A. McKenney, vice-chairman of the Massachusetts Prohibition State Committee, says that he was authorized at a formal meeting of the organization, to take charge of the work of securing signatures to place a prohibition ticket both state and national, in the field in Massachusetts.

FERRY QUITS; FACEY LINKED TO VOTE PLOT

They were the innocent victims of a master political trickster, not of their own party," said Dean Albers.

FACEY NAMED IN PLOT

The name of J. Frank Facey of Cambridge was placed beside that of Mayor Murphy, as one who had a part in circulating Ferry papers, by John T. Hawkes, Harvey st., Cambridge.

Facey was for 25 years an election commissioner in Cambridge and is nationally known for his connection with amateur athletics. Hawkes said he obtained 48 signatures, including a number of Cambridge city employes.

Before the hearing resumed today Mayor Murphy of Somerville had admitted that he aided the candidacy of Ferry to checkmate a Republican plot in the Doherty case, where a repeal candidate had been injected into the political arena.

Mayor Murphy's name was introduced again today when William J. Grady of Somerville testified he circulated a Ferry paper on request of Henry McHenry, secretary of the Somerville mayor.

There might have been something said about helping the Democratic party, McGrady said.

As today's session started, the commission received a denunciatory letter from Oscar McKenney, vice-chairman of the Massachusetts state committee of the National Prohibition Party.

McKenney's letter, which aroused the commission members considerably, charged false statements by Homer Albers.

It also criticized the commission for not calling Prohibition Party leaders to present their side.

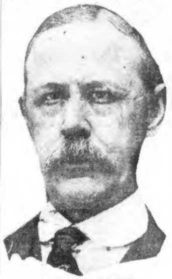
More witnesses, men and women, today disavowed signatures on the Ferry papers.

"I was given the paper to get signatures by J. Frank Facey," said Hawkes. "Facey told me to take the paper around and see what I could do with it.

"Facey said it was a Prohibition party paper and that Democrats and Republicans would sign it. Quite a few city employes of Cambridge signed it."

HIS RECEIPT MISSING

Hawkes started to specify which signatures were those of city employes, and named D. George Murphy and John White, when members of the commission told him they were not interested.



J. FRANK FACEY

"I took the paper to the election commissioners' office in Cambridge (to have the names certified), and obtained a receipt. But when I went to get it, it was gone."

Questioned by Attorney Arey, Hawkes said:

"I asked the people to sign and they did. I told them it was for the Prohibition Party and I did not represent anything. At their request I signed for Martin McMahon, city employe, and Frank B. Hawkes, my uncle. I think for Daniel J. Clifford, too."

Mrs. Mary McCarthy of Cranston st., Jamaica Plain, matron at the city bathhouse on Dover st., South End, laughed so heartily as she told her story of signing a Prohibition Party paper that she had the whole room roaring.

"It was like this," said Mrs. McCarthy.

"When I came back from lunch there was a paper on the table in the bathhouse with three or four women standing near.

"One of the women said, 'Come here, McCarthy.' So I went over and said, 'What is it?' One of the women replied, 'Prohibition; will you sign?' I said, 'Sure, I'm game.' And I signed."

Mrs. McCarthy then started to laugh and it was infectious. Members of the commission looked puzzled, then some of them joined in.

SAYS HE'S A WET

The witness then added:

"Oh, yes, I asked one of the women, 'Is it wet or dry?' They said, 'Wet!' Then I said, I'm game.'"

Q.—(By Atty. Arey)—Suppose they had said, "Dry." Would you have signed?" A.—Oh, no.

And she roared again.

David Sostek, Walnut ave., Roxbury, said he thought he was signing for the national Prohibition candidates, Upshaw and Reagan, not for Ferry. A jeweler, Mr. Krietsberg, presented the paper to him, he said. The same man obtained the signature of another witness, Joseph Price, Townsend st., Roxbury.

Byron Hatch, Fremont st., Somerville, denied signing.

"Are you interested in the prohibition party?" Hatch was asked.

"No, sir," he said. "I'm a wet and I'll tell you that right now."

Others who disavowed their signatures were Frederick Squires, Moreland st., Roxbury; Henry Boissoneault, Henderson st., Somerville; Martin J. Flynn, Lincoln st., Charlestown; Ludwig Nelson, Edgar ct., Somerville; Albert Kilborn, Moreland st., Somerville; John O'Leary, Henderson st., Somerville; Ralph Perkins, Union st., Somerville.

FIND GIRL HOBO ON HOUSETOP

Another "girl hobo" problem faced the Boston police and Suffolk court today with the arrest on a roof top of Frances T. Manley, a well-dressed, attractive girl who said her home was in Bellefonte, Pa.

Patrolman Coleman Foley of Joy st. station climbed to the roof at 78 Allen st. early today and found the girl beside a chimney.

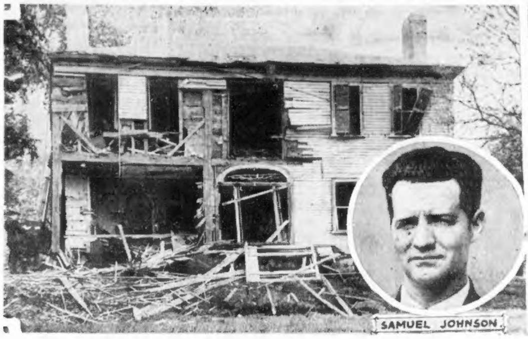
SACCO BOMB AVENGERS VENTED FURY ON 3 OTHER HOMES



BLAST WRECKS HOME OF STATE WITNESS' KIN

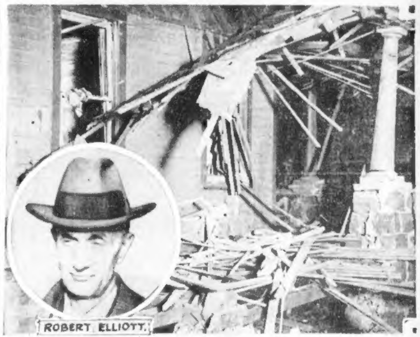
JUROR'S HOME PREY OF THE BOMBERS

Lewis McHardy of East Milton was one of the 12 jurors whose votes resulted in Sacco and Vanzetti being condemned to death, but McHardy's participation in the case lost him his home through an anarchist's bomb in 1927. The American Legion aided the McHardys after the bombing. (Staff photos.)



EXECUTIONER OF TWO MEN ALSO VICTIM

When Sacco and Vanzetti went to their deaths in State Prison at Charlestown, Robert Elliott, official executioner, threw the switch. As a result, his home in Queens, Long Island, was wrecked by a bomb. Elliott, his wife and two children were thrown from their beds but were uninjured.

ROOSEVELT FAR AHEAD IN POLL

By COLE E. MORGAN

Washington, Sept. 27 (US)—The nationwide postcard presidential poll of the Boston Evening American in co-operation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States, is conservative to say the least.

The poll indications from the compilation of approximately 300,000 post card ballots that Governor Roosevelt will sweep the country in November certainly do not overstate the case in the light of straw vote canvasses conducted through other media.

At least two other nationwide polls are in progress while in numerous states individual newspapers or groups are conducting local polls. In every instance, save one, these other polls show a stronger leaning toward Roosevelt than that indicated in the Hearst newspapers poll returns.

Consolidated returns of 12 newspapers in Ohio show Roosevelt drawing 68 per cent of the votes as compared with 49 per cent in the Hearst papers poll. Two in Indiana give him 59 against the Hearst papers' 54 per cent. Three in Illinois show him 61, the same percentage as the Hearst poll.

Gandhi Takes Mud Baths and More Food to Gain Strength

By C. S. DE ANDRADE
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Poona, Sept. 27 (INS)—Impressive scenes were enacted here today when Mahatma Gandhi, who broke his seven-day "fast unto death" yesterday after achieving the crowning triumph of his career, ate a meagre breakfast behind the walls of the Yeravda jail.

Still weak and emaciated from his ordeal, through which he forced the British government to grant Hindu untouchables joint political representation, the Mahatma took a small quantity of orange juice in the presence of the famous Indian poet, Rabindranath Tagore, and scores of admirers.

While Gandhi, lying on his cot in a shaded portion of the jail yard, slowly sipped the liquid, the crowd of friends sat about him, squat-fashion, joyful because their idol seemed sure to recover from the effects of his abstinence.

TAGORE CHANTS VERSES

Then, the pitifully small meal ended, the Mahatma was given injections and massaged to bring back his strength. During this operation Tagore chanted holy verses.

While the frail Mahatma received the joyful ministrations of the circle in the jail yard, Hindus throughout India rejoiced at the news their "Holy Man" had broken his fast and would probably recover.

TEMPLES RE-OPEN

In the wave of enthusiasm that gripped the nation the Hindu temples, closed for hundreds of years, were thrown open to these depressed peoples, for years regarded as the "guttersnipes" of humanity.

Gandhi himself was jubilant over his victory, enthusiasm returning as the effects of the food he had taken warmed his famished body.

"The cause was worth the agony of body and soul I passed through," he said.

INCREASES DIET

At noon, Gandhi increased his diet, taking grapefruit with sugar and plenty of water. Tomorrow he will add barley water and a small amount of whey as his condition improves.

Doctors attending him reported he was progressing well and that no complications had set in.

According to the Hindu calendar, today is Gandhi's birthday. He celebrated it by receiving many visitors who brought him gifts of flowers and fruit. The stock exchange, cotton, bullion and other markets were closed in honor of the occasion.

How Nominees Stand In Nation-Wide Poll

Washington, Sept. 27—The tabulation that follows shows the total vote thus far recorded for President Hoover and Gov. Roosevelt in the nationwide Presidential poll of the Boston Evening American in co-operation with all other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States.

It also shows the majority each candidate has in each State in which he is leading.

In addition, it gives the gain of each candidate on the latest returns received from each State, as compared with the last preceding report from the State. These State reports are usually a week apart.

The final feature of this table shows the net gain of each candidate in each State where he has improved his position, as compared with the last preceding report from that State.

ROBINS' WIFE IS SURE HE LIVES

New York, Sept. 27 (INS)—"Nobody could want to kill my husband, even if he is being held by kidnapers—and I believe that that is what has happened to him—he is a man of such extraordinary charm, he has such a way with him that I feel sure they would stop short of murdering him in cold blood."

Mrs. Margaret D. Robins, wife of Col. Raymond Robins, who disappeared several weeks ago while he was on his way to Washington to see President Hoover, is paying a brief visit to New York today to arrange her affairs before leaving for Washington to carry on the search. There has not been a clue as to his whereabouts, but Mrs. Robins, who has shown remarkable courage, still believes that he is alive and unharmed.

"When my husband is found," she said, "I should like to go away with him for a long vacation—perhaps to England."

Listen—here are the unembroidered facts about one way to get sales in the New York market, the richest trading area in the world.

This market alone has more consumers than the whole Pacific Coast and seven mountain states—does nearly one-seventh of the total retail business of America.

It can be combed and sales-sifted by one home-going family newspaper—America's greatest evening newspaper—the New York Evening Journal—which alone reaches almost one-third of all the English-reading families in Greater New York.

Its sale is 97% concentrated in the 50-mile trading area, where it leads the second evening paper by 250,000 copies daily, the third by 360,000.

It reaches 45% of the entire New York market that can be reached by all New York's evening papers combined!

In New York City, it leads all standard size papers, morning or evening, with its press runs beginning on over 80% of its city deliveries after noon, and 62% after 3 P. M.

In total suburban sale, it exceeds every standard morning paper and all other evening papers combined.

Not merely for a week, or a month, or a year, but for twelve years The Journal has exceeded 600,000 average net paid sale at 3¢ a copy.

The wholly voluntary investment in The Journal by readers is more than $19,000 daily, $130,000 weekly, $6,500,000 yearly.

Its sale has exceeded any evening competitor, sold at any price, by at least 50% for more than 30 consecutive years.

There's bonanza in that peerless circulation for the advertiser with something worthwhile to sell who knows how to tell his story.

Yes, even in these tough times, as The Journal's own status proves.

That is what is meant by the truthful saying that, since 1896 when the paper was first established, year-in, year-out . . . .

Booting Pigskin a Bit. ↑ French Scouts Braves.
Papa Fishman's Twins. ↓ Durn Those New Rules.

Sammy's Family a Whole Cheering Section.

WITH ALL THE OTHER boys writing volumes on the Big Fight, the World Series, the Hole-In-One Tournament and Women's Golf Championship, how about booting the old pigskin about a bit and giving a Wah Whoo Wah for Dartmouth in general and Sammy Fishman of the well known Malden Fishmans, in particular? The ayes have it. Along about this time o' the season, last year, an auto trip up through the blue hills of New Hampshire found us in Hanover looking over the Big Green team in practice. After seeing the aforementioned young Sammy Fishman do everything we ever saw a great back do, and then some, we sat down at the battered old Remington and informed the populace that this Sammy Fishman was a lalapaloosa for sure and, before the season was over, even the great Bill Morton and Bill McCall might have to play second fiddle to him in the Dartmouth backfield. "Haw! Haw!" laughed some of the gang in derision. "Wait and see!" we insisted, "Just wait and see!" And then Sammy had to go and break a leg or something or other and bust up the argument that was raging all over the sporting sanctum sanctorum. But this year Sammy is back with the bells on. He's going to let us settle the debate. Did you note that corkscrew 60-yard dash he made through Norwich, last Saturday? And did you see how quickly Jack Cannell took Sammy out of the lineup? They're not taking any chances of Sammy Fishman getting hurt up to Hanover. And they don't want to flash or spring Sammy too soon. No Sire-e-e-e. Not with the game with Harvard just around the corner here on October 15.

ALONG WITH SAMMY FISHMAN at Dartmouth is his twin brother, Isaac. And thereby hangs a tale. A tale of brotherly sacrifice and loyalty. Papa Fishman, who ran a meat market in Malden, raised 11 children. Sam has a whole cheering section of his own. Besides the twins, Sammy and Isaac, there are three other boys and six girls. It's no cinch to raise a family of 11. Ask dad, he knows! In the early days little Isaac was just as good an athlete as twin brother Sammy. He loved sport just as much. The Fishman twins were both going great in sports circles in Malden when Papa Fishman died. Things must be kept going. Somebody must run the store. Both the Fishman twins couldn't play football and do their duties in the store, too. One must give up athletics. "You go ahead in football, Sammy," smilingly declared Isaac, hiding his diappointment. "I don't care much for sport," he lied. "I'd rather run the store?" And that's why few of you ever heard of Isaac Fishman and why Sammy Fishman gets the headlines. How did Isaac get to Dartmouth along with Sammy, you ask? Didn't we tell you there were three other brothers and six sisters? With the same spirit that Isaac helped out Sammy they united to help Isaac. It is too bad Papa Fishman could not have lived. He would have many reasons to be proud, rightly proud, of his big brood.

BILL FRENCH, who knows his football onions, got an eyeful of the Braves-Steam Rollers game. Says Braves are handicapped by an unwieldy line and Pinckert was slowed up by an interference that continually got in his way. Thinks if Matthews and Spellman, who were on the ends for the Steam Rollers, were guarding the flanks of the Braves instead, there would be no stopping 'em. Says Matthews, erstwhile colored star of Providence College, played one of the best games at end he ever saw. Took out three men on one forward pass within a space of 15 yards. Braves and Steam Rollers played last year's rules, which are infinitely superior to this year's, which are a joke. Incidentally, the Braves failed to wear indentifying numbers. Got to put numbers on 'em Lud before next Sunday's opener with Benny Friedman's Dodgers. Fans want to know "Who's Who, especially who's who among a team of All Stars.

A GREAT FOOTBALL fan is Bill French. Elucidated for an hour in Warmuth's this morning on the glory that once was B. U.'s. Let his "ham and" get cold telling of the days when B. U. played on the little patch of waste ground between apartment houses on St. Mary's st., when you got up from a scrimmage and had to pick a rusty nail from your foot, a piece of broken glass from your elbow and wipe the blood out of your eye from a cut from an old tin can. Once a week the gang was allowed to use Fenway so as they could practice punting. Mention Micky Cochrane to French and Bill's off! Thinks Micky the greatest athlete that ever lived. Says Micky could throw a forward pass as far as the average booter punts. In an old Harvard-B. U. game Cochrane tossed a forward pass from kick formation and Buell, who caught it, thought it was a punt and ran with it.

"ATHLETIC BALLYHOO does not interest us. The prestige of the University does not depend on athletic victories"—William J. Bingham, Harvard Director of Athletics, in the Harvard A. A. News. But we wish we had the dust off the bankroll Harvard spends in turning out winning teams, Bill....Regarding this year's new rules, will someone please find any two officials who agree on the interpretation of some of 'em?....New rules have slowed up the game, but made it more intricate and complicated than ever....Too early to see if they have fulfilled the intent to minimize injuries, but you note that already one Fordham player is in the hospital with a reported brain concussion that may be a fractured skull....And now, for fear that some persons may think our breakfast has disagreed with us, we'll desist, Algernon. But cheer up. Every knock is a boost.

MISS ORCUTT, VARE WIN MATCHES

Shooting a consistent game despite rain and a soggy footing, Miss Maureen Orcutt, of Haworth, N. J., medalist yesterday, won her first round of match play today in the Women's National Golf championship at the Salem Country Club.

She defeated Miss Frances Snyder, of Rye, N. Y., bringing the match to an end on the 15th green 5 up and 3 to play.

A short while later, Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare, of Philadelphia, five times winner of the national crown, turned back the challenge of Mrs. Karl F. Scheidt, of Norristown, Pa., winning 7 and 5.

QUIER WINS AT 11TH

Mrs. Leo G. Federman of Lakeville, N. Y., defeated Mrs. R. C. Lake, Flushing, N. Y., 3 and 2. The victor was two up at the turn and gained her third hole when Mrs. Lake missed the green with her drive on the short 13th. They halved the next three to wind up the match at the 16th hole.

Edith Quier of Haverford, Pa., who picked up seven holes against Mrs. N. S. Goldberger of West Long Branch, N. Y., ended the match on the 11th green to win by the decisive margin of nine and seven. Miss Quier won the first four holes with fours, halved the fifth with a six, gained the seventh with a par three, halved the next one and then put on another four hole streak to end the match.

MRS. VARE SCORES EAGLE

Mrs. Vare gained her first eagle three on the 411-yard first, where she was on in two, 25 feet from the pin. She sank the putt with rare skill. She played the 353-yard fourth in the same sensational fashion, where her second almost hit the pin before stopping five feet away.

The former champion lost the third by trapping her tee shot, Mrs. Scheidt getting a regulation three. She won the fifth and sixth and gained her fourth hole with a par four on the seventh, where Mrs. Scheidt took a six. Glenna then lost her putting touch. She was on the eighth and ninth with two well played woods, but took three putts on each.

DOROTHY HUNTER TRAILS

Mrs. C. S. Eddis of Toronto, unsuccessful finalist in last week's Canadian title play, reached the turn two up on Dorothy Hunter of Newton, going out in 44 to the latter's 46. Mrs. C. S. Eaton, Jr., and Dorothy Richards, two Boston district competitors, were even when they finished the first half of their match.

PECK RE-SIGNED BY INDIANS

Cleveland, Sept. 27 (AP)—Roger Peckinpaugh today was reappointed manager of the Cleveland Indians, it was announced in a telegram received from Alva Bradley, president of the club, who is in New York for the World Series.

B. U. Prospects Are Aided by Return of Two Vets

Myles Lane, Boston University's new head coach, for his starting lineup for the U. of New Hampshire game at the William E. Nickerson Recreation Field, Weston, Saturday, will have 22 men who will be used interchangeably.

The four ends are Herb Semino, Johnny Murphy, Moreland Forte and Christie Harris. For tackles the Terrier mentor has named Horrie Call, Roland Hicks, George Racheotes and Lou Lobel; while guards are Danny Harrington, Hugo Bertolinem, Stan Gilmour and Alphonso Aliberti. Centers are Freddie Myer and George Abodeely.

In the backfield Captain Carl Clem, George Guyette, Gus Leguern, Eddie Hart, Johnny Ulman, Wilbur Storer, Johnny Paterno and Bill Whelton will work.

The Terriers' chances for the coming season were greatly improved when Eddie Hart, back and Lou Lobel, tackle, two veterans, today decided to play.

THIS IS THE SHOT THAT MADE HIM KING FOR THE DAY

HARVARD HARD HIT AT PIVOT POSITION

Harvard's Eddie Casey and his center coach, Eskie Clark, are puzzling over the problem of keeping enough centers on the Crimson squad in fit condition to face Buffalo in the opening game at the stadium on Saturday. With the exception of Roger Hallowell, first-string pivot, all the other passers on the squad are laid up with injuries.

Today Harvard's hospital list was reduced to four men, but of that four three are veteran reliable centers. Warren Casey, Hallowell's first assistant is definitely out of the game for another three weeks; Brad Simmons, Team C center, is on the white shirt squad, and Donald Gleason is in street clothes.

CASALE SHIFTED

Things have gone so far that Casey was forced to draft Frank Casale, from his guard duties, to fill in on Team B, and now Frank Schumann, star end on last year's freshman team, is being broken in to spell the other two. Hallowell and Casale are experienced ball passers, but it is a new spot in the line for the tall, slim Schumann.

Another new face to appear in the Crimson lineup is that of Al Kidder, right tackle. Kidder forced his way up from the junior varsity squad along with Sherman, a quarterback, and now both have snatched berths in the Team C lineup for themselves.

SCRIMMAGE TODAY

The Crimson will receive another taste of scrimmage this afternoon. Casey had the varsity running plays long after their usual quitting time yesterday and the same procedure will be followed again today and for the rest of the week.

The first three Crimson lineups are shaken up a bit today. On team A Herman Gundlach is established for the opener at right guard. Johnny Grady, Chester Litman and Carl Pescosolido, have displaced the second string trio of backs sending Hurlbut, Waters and Locke to the third outfit, with Stanton Whitney quarterback on team B and Sherman on C.

Crimson Harrier Squad Starts Work

Coach Jaako Mikkola of the Harvard cross-country team, held informal practice at Soldiers Field, giving his charges a light jog as their first workout of the season.

Yanks and Cubs Like Selection of Umpires

By JOE CASHMAN

New York, Sept. 27—Those who have been waiting in line at the bleacher gates of the Yankee stadium for days in the hope of selling their places at the last moment bid fair to be disappointed, for the Yankee management expects to have 10,000 ducats left over when play starts tomorrow.

If the Walker-Schmeling fight profited any by the World Series interest, so too will the series profit by the fight interest. Hundreds who came here intending to remain only for the fight have decided to stay over for the ball games as long as seats are available.

The Yankees and Cubs are unanimous in their approval of the umpires selected to work in the series. Bill Klem has long been rated the most efficient of all arbiters, and little fault has ever been found with the work of Bill Dineen, Roy Van Graflan and George Magerkurth, who will be appearing in the classic for the first time.

Bob Quinn, Red Sox prexy and Manager Joe McCarthy of the Yanks are anxiously awaiting the arrival of Judge Landis to thrash out the question of whether Gordon Rhodes and Ivy Paul Andrews of the Fenway flock should be permitted to receive the series share awarded them by the Yanks for their early-season services as members of the champions. Bob and Joe hope to make the judge change his original "no" to "yes."

Even though neither of the first two games in New York is a sellout, enough money should be taken in at the gate to make the players' pot of gold one of the richest in World Series history.

There may be a surplus of regular tickets, but there are two requests for every available press pass.

WEATHER MAN UNKIND TO THE INVADING CUBS

New York, Sept. 27 (AP)—The Chicago Cubs, full of vim and vigor, rolled into town on their special train at 10 a. m. today, anxious to get into their playing togs and get in stiff practice at Yankee Stadium, but after two glances at the sodden sky Manager Charley Grimm decided his team would do all of its practicing at the hotel.

As a result, the National League champions will go into the first game of the World Series against the Yanks tomorrow without having had a workout on the battle site. Several members of the Cubs will get their first glimpse of the big plant only a couple of hours before game time.

"It would be possible to work out today," explained Grimm, "but it would be wet and there's no use in taking any chances. All of the boys are in good shape and I believe we can get along without working today.

YANKS SIT AROUND

"The main reason we wanted to visit Yankee Stadium was to get a line on the sun, how it affects our batters and outfielders. But there isn't any sun."

The Yankees also were forced to forego practice. They gathered at the stadium and sat around for a spell, discussing their plans for the series and wondering if the weather would clear in time to play tomorrow, but Marse Joe McCarthy wouldn't turn them loose on the field.

Although the rain was disagreeable, it had not damaged the diamond to any extent. Only the ground around the pitcher's box and home plate were covered. The base paths were comparatively dry.

Yankee Bosses Choke Up as Fans Stay Away in Droves

New York, Sept. 27 (INS)—The management of the Yankees, alarmed at the apathy shown by World Series ticket buyers, is considering an appeal to Judge Kenesaw Landis for permission to violate the present rule that reserved tickets can be sold only for three games and not for single contests.

A strip of three tickets costs $16.50, and baseball fans with $16.50 are not as numerous this year as they have been. Fans wishing to see a single contest have to buy tickets for three games and then hope they can dispose of the two not needed.

If Landis relents, single tickets may be bought for $5.50.

MUST CONSIDER BAER IN FUTURE HEAVY BOUTS

Chicago, Sept. 27 (AP)—When plans for the next important heavyweight battle are made, it will be difficult to overlook Max Baer, of Livermore, Cal.

In the Chicago stadium, same ring where he flattened Ernie Schaaf of Boston, less than a month ago, Baer last night definitely eliminated Tuffy Griffiths, game youngster from Sioux City, Ia., from consideration as a championship contender by a technical knockout in the seventh round.

Had Baer cared to, he might even have accomplished the elimination as early as the fourth round.

HACKED TUFFY

Endowed with all the physical advantages, height, reach and a weight pull of 16 pounds, the Californian, taking his time and taking time out to display his histrionic ability, literally hacked Griffiths down to defeat.

After the first round it appeared apparent that Baer was headed for victory, and after the fourth, when Griffiths was all but out from vicious chops to the body and head, the issue was not in doubt.

REFEREE STOPS BOUT

Griffiths' splendid courage carried him through one storm after another, but in the seventh, a crushing right to the jaw sent him reeling against the ropes, and as he bounced off, another left him ready for the finishing punch. The referee, however, stepped in and ended the fray before the decisive punch could be delivered.

Johnny Gaito Wins in Holyoke Bout

RED RUFFING OUTSTANDING OF M'CARTHY HURLERS

By JOE CASHMAN
Evening American Staff Writer

New York, Sept. 17—In striking contrast to Manager Joe McCarthy of the Yankees, who is studying the stars, gazing into crystal balls and consulting soothsayers in an effort to pick his opening game pitcher, Manager Charlie Grimm of the Cubs breezed into this hamlet on the Hudson today knowing his hurlers for the first two tilts of the World Series.

"Guy Bush will go tomorrow, as I said several days ago, and I'll come back with Lonnie Warneke on Thursday, providing I don't have to call on him also in the opener," asserted the Cubs' boss, ratifying the statement he made pulling out of Chicago yesterday.

This is the first time in the history of the classic, to our knowledge, that any manager named his flingers for the first two games more than 24 hours in advance of the opening skirmish.

Even if he could look that far ahead, the average pilot would keep the information to himself in order to create the impression that it requires plenty of master-minding right up to the start of every game to make a World's Series mound choice.

GRIMM TELLS PLANS

Grimm, though, doesn't work that way. He sees no reason why a manager shouldn't make his plans well ahead of time and then announce them. The Cubs, in his opinion, wouldn't be any better off if he withheld the identity of his pitchers until the last moment. And, if you ask us, we agree with him.

We hasten to add, however, that it isn't because of any desire to to be secretive that McCarthy has failed to name his starting twirler up to now.

The truth of the matter is that the local pitchers hand Manager

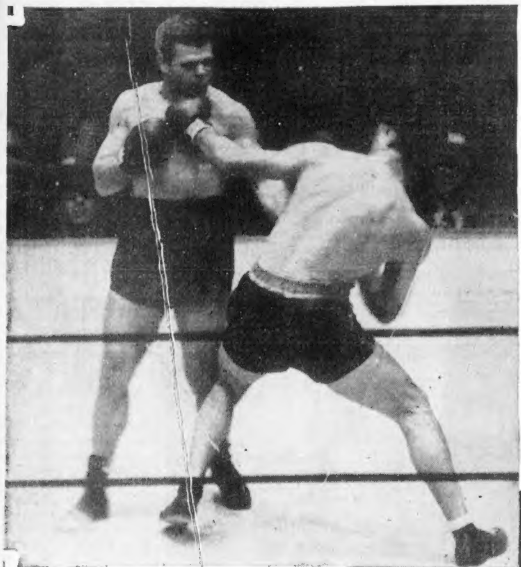
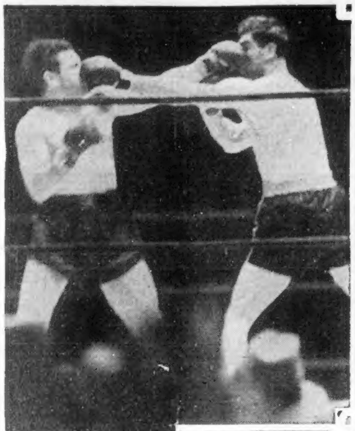
SCHMELING STOPS WALKER IN EIGHTH ROUND

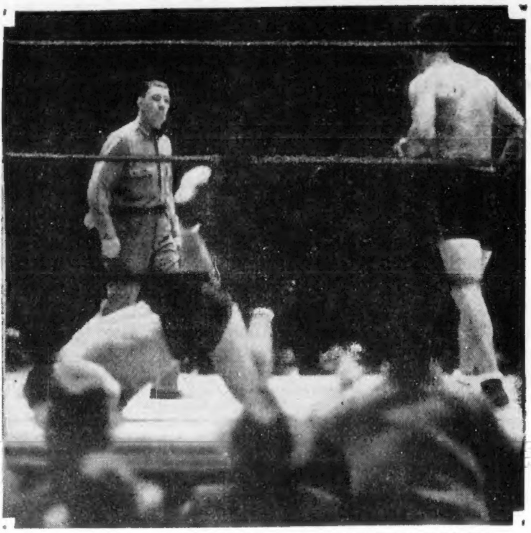


FIRST ROUND AGONY

Max Schmeling, the German, former heavyweight champion of the world, pelted little Mickey Walker into a beaten battler at the Garden Bowl, on Long Island, last night. Here you see Walker being staggered in the first round. Look at the German's glove right at Walker's chin. Max followed this with a right that floored the American battler.

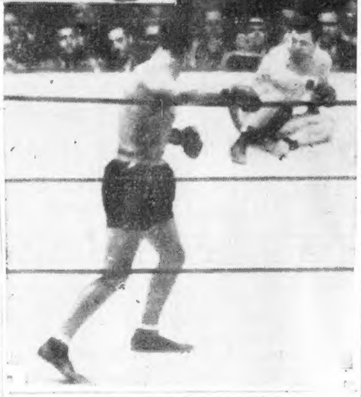


WALKER RALLIES IN 4TH



THE SPILLS OF THE EIGHTH—THERE WAS NO NINTH

It was in the eighth stanza, that great round for Max Schmeling and awful one for Mickey Walker, that this scene was registered. It's a funny fall. Walker lands on his left knee and hands. Note his right foot high in the air. His left foot is on way to floor. This is the first of two falls that came to Walker in the big eighth. You see Referee Jack Denning watching the German—to see that he gets to a neutral corner. Walker went to his corner at the bell. He did not come out again. A conference in Walker's corner with referee and Kearns, the manager, caused the fight to be awarded to the German.



MORE SORROW IN FIRST ROUND

Again you see a bit of the first round. This was the result of the punch referred to in the lines under that first picture. In this, Walker stayed on the floor for a count of six. The bell rang at the count of seven. Walker was saved, although he seemed strong enough to get going after he would take a count or two more.

Kearns Halts Bout With Mickey on Verge of K. O.

By JACK CONWAY

New York, Sept. 27—Max Schmeling painted Mickey Walker red and then knocked him out in eight rounds before 60,000 persons at the Garden Bowl in Long Island.

Doc Kearns notified Referee Jack Denning Walker was unable to continue after the bell had sounded for the end of the eighth round. Both of Mickey's eyes were closed, while his face was a mass of blood. He had been subjected to terrific punishment by the former champion.

Referee Denning immediately declared Schmeling the winner. He announced that the bout ended in the eighth round as the gong had not sounded for the opening of the ninth round when he rendered his decision.

Walker was licked from the opening gun. He was completely outclassed by Schmeling.

MAX FLOORS MICKEY

The youthful German rushed into the lead in the first round. Late in the frame, he staggered Walker with a mighty right-hand sock to the jaw. As Mickey reeled backwards, Schmeling shot another right to the jaw. Walker hit the canvas. The bell for the end of the round sounded at the count of seven. Walker staggered to his corner.

It is seldom that a fighter has been subjected to the hammering Walker received in the eighth round.

WALKER DOWN FOR SIX

On his feet Walker fought back with great courage, but there was not any power to his blows. Schmeling crashed short left and right hand punches to the head, and then whipped his right duke to the button. Walker dropped to the canvas again. This time he took the benefit of the count of nine.

WALKER IN BAD SHAPE

Walker, his eyes closed, his face covered with blood, his legs unsteady, his eyes glassy, staggered to his corner. Jack Kearns took one look at the gallant Rumson warrior, and then told Referee Jack Denning that Mickey was unable to continue. The referee immediately declared Schmeling a winner by a knockout in eight rounds.

It is seldom that boxing has produced a more gallant stand than the one made by Walker.

Outweighed by 14 pounds, and pitted against a younger and stronger opponent, Walker was in there fighting on his heart and experience. He didn't have a chance to win at any stages of the contest.

Walker won the third and fourth rounds on points, but only because Schmeling was trying to pick a spot for his right hand.

Schmeling gave the fans a thrill when he started tossing right hand punches from the opening gong. Unlike Jack Sharkey, the slow moving Walker was easy to reach with right hands.

When Schmeling scored with his first heavy right, late in the first round, it was apparent Walker didn't even have an outside chance with the German. Then came the crashing right to the jaw which had Mickey on the floor at the bell for the end of the first heat.

Schmeling was as cold as the proverbial ice in the second round. He kept setting Mickey up with left jabs and hooks and then belting him on the chin with short right-hand blows.

The third and fourth rounds, which were won by Walker, found Schmeling taking things easy, coasting along as he stalked his kill.

MAX HAD FIGHT PLANNED

This was all according to plan. Schmeling told me months ago that a body attack would ruin Mickey. He declared Walker had spent too much time around Broadway to be able to take such punches.

The eighth round was too much for Mickey. Those sweeping right-hand belts to the jaw ended his quest for heavyweight honors. He went down like a great fighter should, still letting blows go at the final bell.

Kearns did a wise and merciful thing in asking Referee Denning to stop the bout. One more punch might have caused grave injury to Walker.

It was a decisive triumph for Schmeling and places him once more as the leading challenger for Jack Sharkey.

Sharkey saw Max win. He was pleased by the German's triumph. The champion had figured Schmeling would win by a knockout in eight or nine rounds. He was glad to see him do so as he feels he will make the best possible attraction against him in a title defense go next June.

Tony Shucco of Boston and Charley Belanger of Canada went eight rounds to a draw. It was this writer's opinion that Shucco won.

FAVOR NEWARK TO WIN SERIES

Newark, N. J., Sept. 27 (AP)—Eyes of the minor league baseball world turned to this red-hot baseball city today to watch the opening engagement in the little world series between the Newark champions of the International League and Minneapolis, pennant winners in the American Association.

Partly because of the long interim since the last pennant came to this city, a record crowd for little world series games was expected to throng to Ruppert Stadium for the start at 2 o'clock this afternoon. It was indicated a sell-out crowd of 20,000 would attend.

Newark's young, fast team ruled a 9-to-5 favorite to win today's struggle, the first of three games scheduled here.

So What?

—By JOE MOONEY—

So times aren't tough? How about Gil going into church and trying to get out of contributing pew rent by saying "Press"?

Everything comes to him who waits. But at Fenway Park you have to wait 'til the season's over to see any action.

Cards' Attendance Has Severe Slump

St. Louis, Sept. 27 (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals played to many vacant seats in their home games the past season.

Total attendance for home games was only 300,000, compared with a total attendance of approximately 625,000 last year. The 1932 attendance, based on day-to-day figures announced by Cardinal officials, was the lowest in eight years. In 1928 the team drew about 800,000 patrons to the home stadium.

Walker Gamest Fighter
Schmeling Has Heart
Congratulates Fighters

—By BILL CORUM—

Good Little Man Not Good Enough

New York, Sept. 27—The good little man wasn't good enough.

Little Mickey Walker ran dead true to form in his fight with Max Schmeling in the garden of the cauliflowers in Queens last evening. But, unfortunately for the Toy Bull Dog, so did Schmeling.

The sable-thatched fighter from Unter den Linden tagged Miko with that fire-cracker right hand in the first round, bided time for the next six, and then went to work to finish it in the eighth.

He did—with a vengeance. He laid the convincer on the Irishman's jaw, spun him around and dropped him in a grotesque heap for a count of six. After that it was just like shooting quail a-setting.

Walker went down only a few feet from Schmeling's corner, where I chanced to be sitting in the press box. As he turned over and came up into a half-sitting posture he would have been looking directly at me had he been looking at anything. I watched his face.

His usually twinkling small blue eyes were puffed, cut, almost closed. His face was butchered, battered, his mouthpiece had been knocked out with a punch. He groped around, found it. But he picked it up the wrong way.

Walker Gamest Boxer to Ever Wear Toga

I think I never saw anything gamer in my life than his effort to get it straightened out between his lacerated lips. He was not waiting for a count. He was waiting to get that mouthpiece set. At five he did. At six he was on his feet and, as he leaped forward puffing, he sprayed a mist of blood at the compassionate German boy and slugged with a savage, despairing right.

The former champion could scarcely have fought a better fight, although he might very well have got home to bed earlier. He showed that the hokum about little men bothering big men was, so far as he was concerned, at any rate, just hokum pure and simple. He was always the boss.

Just as had been widely predicted, the loser showed that he could live under a punch. But not all night. Not under Schmeling's punches. The German's Big Bertha right was shooting out like a piston, quick, sharp, deadly. He seldom missed and when he did even the breeze from it hurt Walker.

Schmeling Requests Referee to Stop Fight

After that first knockdown in the eighth, Schmeling topped him again, this time in a neutral corner and this time with two savage hooks, one to start him over and one to make sure he went. This time Mickey took all he could get and needed every second of it. He was up at nine. He always has been up at nine except once. He always will be so long as they continue to send him in there.

But though he knew he was on his feet, that must have been about all he did know. By this time even Schmeling was begging Referee Jack Denning to stop it and the crowd was in an uproar:

"Stop it! Stop it!" They bellowed.

But Denning apparently had been warned about Walker's cutting easily and asked not to stop the fight because of that. By then it was massacre, but he let it go on.

But if Denning was deaf to all pleas, Doc Kearns, Walker's manager and pal, was not. At the end of the round, the eighth, he walked over and told Denning the fight was over.

Walker won four of the eight rounds on my score sheet by sheer grit and aggressiveness.

YANKEE PILOT IS BAFFLED BY HURLING STAFF

YANK PITCHERS OFF FORM

Every pitcher the New York pilot was counting upon for World's Series victories when the Yanks were piling up a commanding lead in the American League race, has fallen by the wayside of late, with the lone exception of Johnny Allen, rookie right-hander.

When Vernon "Lefty" Gomez was burning up the circuit in mid-season, he appeared certain to get the nomination. Now it's doubtful whether the young Spaniard will see action in any of the games. He hasn't turned in a creditable performance in weeks.

was the Yanks' best bet up to a month ago, and today he seems to have first call. Yet, in his dress rehearsal against the A's last week, he was hit hard and beaten.

George Pipgras, another of the regular season reliables, went to the hill against the Red Sox last Sunday and was hit freely and scored upon in every inning he worked.

Herb Pennock, Danny MacFayden, Ed Wells and Walter Brown are all good pitchers and worthy of consideration, but if they weren't rated as regulars during the campaign, McCarthy can't very well name one of them to start the series.

It is taken for granted hereabouts that Ruffing will be the choice tomorrow. The former Fenway flinger seems to be the logical selection, but due to his poor showing in his most recent start, McCarthy is as yet unable to decide between "Big C." and the freshman. Allen, who, though he is young, excitable and has never been tested under series fire, looked immense against the Red Sox last Sunday.

N. Y. FLINGING UNCERTAIN

In short, the Yankee pilot, after getting superfine pitching most of the season, finds himself on the eve of the big money title clashes forced to choose between a veteran who hasn't worked for a week and was whipped easily then, and an untried kid to pitch the first game.

So whatever his ultimate decision, it can't help but leave Marse Joe on the verge of nervous prostration. And we hate to think of the condition he'll be in when he gets around to naming his third game pitcher.

We still think the Yanks will win this series, but it's exceptional hitting rather than good pitching that promises to carry them through.

The Yanks remain 10 to 7 favorites to win the opener and the series. There is little wagering because of those odds. The McCarthymen look 2 to 1 stronger on paper.

Canzoneri Meets Kirsch Tonight

New York, Sept. 27 (AP)—Tony Canzoneri, world's lightweight champion, meets Lew Kirsch of New York in a 10-round non-title match at the Queensboro Stadium tonight.

Kirsch has been beaten only once in a comparatively brief boxing career but he does not figure to seriously disturb the champion.

Kearns and Dempsey Shake Hands While 40,000 Cheer Reconciliation

New York, Sept. 26—Jack Kearns though many thought so, wasn't exactly the saddest man in this town today even though his hopes of pushing Mickey Walker to the heavyweight championship were blasted by the fists of Max Schmeling.

Kearns had one joyful note. For just before Mickey stepped into the slaughter, Kearns shook hands with Jack Dempsey, renewing an old friendship and burying a rusty hatchet.

Kearns had not grasped the iron paw of Dempsey since they broke up years ago with Estelle Taylor, the movie siren, forcing the split by leading the Manassa Mauler to the altar.

MURRAY'S SECOND SHOT 19½ INCHES FROM ACE

FORMER SOX TRAINER TOPS ACE FIELD

The competition in the Boston American's Hole-In-One contest at Franklin Park is still wide open.

Despite the fact that four competitors landed within the 10-foot radius and Tommy Murray, 50-year-old Red Sox trainer, managed to drop one pill within 19 inches of the cup, there is still plenty of opportunity to better this mark for the 120 or more golfers yet to shoot at the pin.

New York, Sept. 27 (AP).—Speaker John N. Garner, Democratic vice presidential candidate, and John H. McCooey, Brooklyn Democratic leader and national committeeman from New York, conferred for half an hour today at Democratic national headquarters.

"My interview with the Speaker was very interesting and I think we have a common understanding not to talk about it," McCooey said after the conference.

McCooey was asked whether he shared the expectation of Speaker Garner that former Gov. Alfred E. Smith would soon give his whole-hearted support to the national ticket.

"He's over 21 years old and has had almost as much experience as I have," McCooey replied. "I think he'd better speak for himself."

Congressman Sam Rayburn of Texas and Senators Marcus A. Coolidge of Massachusetts and Henry F. Ashurst, of Arizona, also conferred with Garner today.

New York, Sept. 27 (AP)—Announcement was made today that Supreme Court Justice Bernard L. The application was opposed by H. Nelson Slater, son of Mrs. Slater, who is one of a committee charged with caring for her.

Boston, Mass.

My dear Mr. Cremmen:

Once again the American has scored for Houghton's. Last Saturday, September 24th, we held our autumn store-wide Dollar Day.

For this Dollar Day we decided to put all of our eggs in one basket; to make a strong appeal to the readers of the Boston American, rather than a scattered appeal to the readers of all the papers, as had been our previous practice.

You saw the crowds and you know that, except for Greater Houghton Day last May, more people shopped at Houghton's last Saturday than any other day in the ninety years of this store's existence. You might also be interested in knowing the dollar results were twice that of any other Dollar Day in 1932, and four times larger than any Dollar Day prior to 1932.

The eight page section in the Boston American, Friday we, the only newspaper advertising which carried items in this sale...and it did the trick.

Very truly yours,

THIS IS LIFE

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

R. E. ROGERS

THE CONVICTION STEALS over me again that Boston is far, far away from the center of things. We must be, in the strictest sense of the word, backwoodsmen and provincials, since we do not seem to take it as a matter of course that there is a Revolution imminent, of which the result will be Communism.

Now down in New York, apparently all the literary intellectuals have made up their minds firmly, not merely to face that probability but to embrace it, welcome it, and write pieces about it. The first hint I got of it was when I received from Gilbert Seldes a neat, compact and excellently argued pamphlet written to pursuade his literary brethren who were celebrating the necessity and advisability of Revolution that they were blithering idiots, who had no idea what a revolution really meant or involved or they wouldn't be talking so loosely about it. He took his text from one of Stuart Chase's favorite arguments, that modern civilization could be destroyed by the strike of a hundred technical "key-men" in the transportation, communication, fuel and light industries. And Seldes pointed out that the way in which revolution could possibly get control of our modern society would be by smashing everything which makes life possible for us.

Why, We're Already in Revolt!

I took it for granted that Mr. Seldes was exaggerating the extent of the talk. Then came George Soule in the August Harper's asking "Are We Going to Have a Revolution?" He began his article:

"If you want to hear discussions of the future revolution in the United States, do not go to the breadlines and the mill towns, but to Park ave. and Wall Street, or to the gatherings of young literary men . . . The most solid recent gains of the revolutionary faith have been among the intellectuals."

Then he goes on to point out that the intellectuals are mistaken. The revolution is not yet to come. We are already in the midst of it.

The latest blow was struck by still another Harper's writer, Joseph Wood Krutch, who in "Communism and the Pagan" compares himself to an intelligent and skeptical Roman of the Empire who finds all his old friends suddenly converted to the new "Christianity," rejoicing that they are saved, prophesying the end of the world, and offering themselves for imminent martyrdom. So far as he can see, he says, all the New York literary intellectuals have embraced the new faith as a faith, not through reason but through the emotion of conversion. They bear all the marks of the religious convert, the assurances of a good time coming, the determination to walk by faith instead of by reason, the unwillingness to hear one jot of their new formula criticized, the belief in the millenium and the second coming . . . all the stigmata of the Christian convert. Mr. Krutch sees himself in the position of the worldly-wise, skeptical pagan, who still wishes to bring reason to bear on this phenomenon and is losing all his friends in consequence.

Of course the converts can remind Mr. Krutch that, historically, the new religion conquered once and may do so again, leaving the skeptics quite up a tree. They can also remind us provincials in Boston that the new religion began in the metropolis and took a long time to penetrate to the distant and pagan departments of the Empire, and that when it did penetrate, the provincials had to be converted by force. Maybe so!

Dreiser and Anderson Go Red Too

Anyway, these three witnesses trying to show their brethren the error of their ways persuades me that the New York literary world is lost to the United States. Both Theodore Dreiser and Sherwood Anderson have obviously and publicly gone Communist. A Mr. Calverton has just published a book showing that the literary history of these United States is an inexorable and inevitable path to Communism. The editor of Harper's adds:

"A political faith which seems quite understandable in those who have been at death grips with unemployment or starvation, is a little startling when it sprouts overnight in some friend, whose preoccupations have been with Italian primitives, early cloisonne, or the novels of Marcel Proust."

There may be those who do not take it all seriously, nevertheless most of the book and magazine writing and publishing emanates from New York, and for all we know the entire United States may be in for a protracted session of evangelism, the good tidings of Communism. Why isn't Boston taking its share?

The shameful but unescapable fact seems to be that there are no intellectuals in Boston. At least none who call themselves intellectuals with the bland assurance which New York writers affect. We have plenty of people who write and publish, it is true, plenty of political and social philosophers, plenty of academic scholars and critics. But none of them seem to be intellectuals. What is the matter?

Their Livers Have Gone Wrong

Perhaps it is that they are not connected with Columbia. Perhaps it is that they have no house-organ like The Nation or The New Republic to furnish them with both a living and a pulpit. Perhaps it is because we have no Union Square to intimidate us. Perhaps it is because our public school teachers do not constitute a highly organized center of social discontent in the European manner. But mainly, I guess, it is a matter of definition. Our Intellectuals . . . or those whom we fondly thought were Intellectuals . . . are not Intellectuals. To be an Intellectual you have to be a Radical. A Conservative can't be an Intellectual. It sounds like a primer and indeed it is . . . a primer of American intellectualism.

I know of no single bit of evidence that shows more clearly how utterly removed and estranged New York is from the realities of American life. The astonishing thing about the present crisis is how little radicalism (in the European sense) it has produced. Neither the protest of the B. E. F. in Washington nor the produce strike in the west can be of any comfort to the communist-minded. There is suffering and discontent; there will be a political overturn. But there are no signs of a philosophical overturn . . . for that is what a revolution is . . . except in the speakeasy cenacles of the New York intellectuals, who have fed themselves so full on news from Russia and books about Russia that they are all suffering from revolutionary liver trouble.

All this may produce some good literature. The revolutionary green-sickness of young Wordsworth and Southey and Coleridge did not effect anything except an increased realism in English government, but it did produce some very fine literature. And so long as our young litterateurs do not take to rioting in Union Square, where they would get their heads rapped, but stick to the confection of beautiful letters, the communist movement in our literature may be something of a blessing.

Boston will go about its business as usual.

COURT ORDER IS IGNORED BY TILLMAN

Loser in Breach of Promise Suit "Juggled" Properties, Girl's Lawyer Charges

Intimation that Carroll Tillman, Boston economist who lost in a love joust with Miss Marguerite "Brown Eyes" Potter, New York poetess and musician, "juggled" his properties after losing a breach of promise fight to her last April, was made today in Federal Court.

Tillman, against whom a federal court jury returned a verdict of $9375 in her $100,000 breach-of-promise suit, has failed to pay the award, and yesterday a meeting of stockholders in his company, the Economic Publications, Inc., was held to study his finances.

REPORTS SUBMITTED

With Tillman present reports on this meeting, held in the State st. office of Attorney Lee M. Friedman, counsel for Miss Potter, were submitted today to U. S. Commissioner Jenney.

In presenting the reports of testimony given by various employes and stockholders of the company, including Tillman, the lawyer declared that Tillman apparently had juggled his properties into other names.

Atty Friedman charged that the loser in the love-joust had refused also to turn over two insurance policies for $2000 each payable to himself and has refused to turn over keys to safe deposit boxes.

TILLMAN'S PAY CUT

One employe of the company Miss Priscilla Morris of 368 Longwood ave., testified, according to Friedman, that Tillman's salary has been cut to $35 and that he was in such need of money that he sold to her his rights to more Economic Publications stock for $200.

Tillman, she admitted, told her the rights were for sale.

FULLER HOME GUARDED BY POLICE

Blood of Station 16 is keeping a keen eye out for loiterers. Fuller was governor at the time Sacco and Vanzetti were executed, and his refusal to interfere with the sentence brought upon him the hate of radicals. Fuller and his family are now at their Rye, N. MAYOR CURLEY HOME FRIDAY

Mayor Curley, returning from his speechmaking trip to the Pacific Coast in behalf of Franklin D. Roosevelt for President, will arrive at Huntington ave. station of the Boston & Albany railroad Friday morning at 11.05.

A reception is being planned and a huge crowd is expected to be on hand when the mayor and his party leave their train, on which they will come from Cleveland.

Mayor Curley's last speech of the tour is Thursday evening at Cleveland. He was in St. Louis yesterday and was [illegible] entertained at the Tennis & Racquet Club by Charles S. Ashley Jr., Walter Monahan and Joseph Dovle, all former Massachusetts men; at city hall by Mayor J. J. Neun, at the Sunset Hill Country Club by Adolphus Busch and also at the Busch estate which was formerly owned by President Grant, and at the Jefferson Club.

Theodore Morrison, Harvard '23, has been appointed editor of the Harvard Graduate Magazine. He succeeds Bernard DeVoto, who resigned last year.

FULLER PASSES UP BODY GUARD

Former Governor Alvan T. Fuller was undaunted today at the possibility of any violent action being taken against him following the bombing of Judge Thayer's home.

Reached by the Boston Evening American at his Rye Beach, N. H., estate during a morning of [illegible], the former Governor said he had declined a police guard.

"I don't need any guard," he said. "They offered me one, but I refused it."

The former governor did not wish to discuss the Thayer bombing at this time, but [illegible].

"I may have a statement later on."

Fuller was chief executive of Massachusetts at the time Sacco and Vanzetti were executed. He [illegible] refused to intervene in their behalf after receiving the report of his special commission which reviewed the entire case.

The ex-governor, whose wife is visiting New York, was out on the golf links early while police were asking to have him guarded. His home in Beacon st. was watched by officers while his employes in the city tried vainly to reach him to acquaint him with the happening.

BLOOM KILLED TO STAY RUM RING RUIN

Boston 'Fixer' Long Suspected by Gangsters of Telling Secrets to the U. S. Raiders

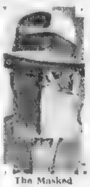
Rumboats, each representing a big investment, not to mention the value of the cargoes they carried, were being "knocked off" with amazing precision near the mouth of the Sakonnet river.

Customs Inspector William Fitzgerald and Commander Roy Patch of the Woods Hole coast guard were having phenomenal success intercepting these speedy vessels.



The Masked Reporter

Heavy casualties were being inflicted on the rum fleet of the New York syndicate which [illegible] control of [illegible] Narragansett Bay and [illegible] southern Massachusetts coast [illegible].

The [illegible] rum [illegible] Kleleo, powered with four mighty engines and built at a cost of $75,000, was seized despite its close and perfect contact with shore by short-wave radio.

Without question, somebody was "fingering" the syndicate's boats to the government men.

Seizures on shore were occurring too, and, [illegible] already related, the [illegible] plant at Cranston, R. I., had been taken.

And once more The Bloom, contact man and fixer for the New York crowd, was in hot water.

But once more he eased himself out of the jam, convincing his chiefs that he was not to blame; convincing even the most skeptical of them that he had done no double-crossing. He had powerful friends and they put in a good word for him.

GRAFT BLOCKS MOTOR LAWS, HE DECLARES

Municipal Court Jurist's Appeal for Man He Fined Is Told to Kiwanis Club

Politicians and drunken drivers were linked today as a menace to the successful carrying out of his duties by Motor Vehicle Registrar Morgan T Ryan, in an address before the Kiwanis Club in the Boston City Club.

"Drunken drivers block us on the highways on the outside," said the registrar, "but it is the inside work of the grafting politicians that impedes us most."

"SAFETY FIRST," BY JUDGE

Registrar Ryan cited the case of a judge of the municipal court of Suffolk County, whom Ryan did not name, who convicted a man of drunken driving and fined him $100

"He did that apparently to save his own skin," Ryan said of the judge. "A few days later I received a letter from him, saying that although he had fined the man, he did not consider that specific case of drunken driving a menace, and he asked that the license be not revoked."

THREAT TO NAME HIM

Ryan said he was not willing now to name the judge but understood that latter intended sending another letter in the same vein. If this occurs, the registrar said, he will turn the letter over to the newspapers with the name of the judge.

"About $78,000 a month is being spent at Commonwealth Pier 1 maintain the motor vehicle registry," said the registrar, "but it would be nowhere near as expensive if drunken drivers and politicians with friends would be done away with."

Counsel for both sides failed to reach an agreement yesterday, and it is expected that the case will be prolonged for several weeks with testimony by MacBeth.

JUDGE CALM AMID RUINS

Standing on the porch of a neighbor's house, Judge Webster Thayer is shown as he surveyed the wreckage of what, until this morning, was his home. With the same courage which characterized his attitude in the Sacco-Vanzetti case, when the entire radical world shouted threats at his head, Judge Thayer remarked simply: "I should hate to think that because a man does his duty before mankind and God, his penalty is this." FIRE LADDER INJURES THEM ON TROLLEY

MISS MARY VALENTE

MISS FRANCES TERINO

When a fire truck, speeding in Meridian st., East Boston, to a fire, crashed into a trolley car at Meridian and Trenton sts., six persons were injured and the 20 passengers on the car were on the verge of a panic. Three of the injured were firemen, one the motorman.

Misses Mary Valente, 17, of 119 Mill st., Revere, and Frances Terino, 22, of 82 Clinton st., Chelsea, were seated together when a ladder from the truck crashed through a window, injuring them both. They were treated at East Boston Relief Hospital.

Camden N. J, Sept. 27—After two and a half months' shutdown the Camden plant of the American Tobacco Company today opened giving employment to 700 cigar makers.

Thayer Fearless, Defies Bomber

"I shall carry on."

That was the fearless promise of Judge Webster Thayer, delivered this afternoon through his daughter, Mrs Barbara Gault of Amherst who joined him at the Worcester home of a friend.

"That is his message," said Mrs. Gault. "Beyond that he does not wish to say anything at this time."

This morning, surveying the ruins of his home in the breaking dawn, the judge turned to a Boston Evening American reporter and said

"I should hate to think that because a man does his duty before mankind and God he has to pay this kind of penalty. I do not wish to theorize. It is not my business to determine causes. It is the duty of the authorities." He added, smiling, "They can't kill me that easy."

Zarrilli Clemency Plea Is Unopposed

There was no opposition at a hearing today at State Prison on the petition for clemency by Vito Michael Zarrilli of Cambridge, who is serving a 10 to 15 year manslaughter sentence for shooting Michael J Lancelotte. He has served less than a year.

Zarrili, asked for clemency because on the morning of the shooting an automobile was parked outside his home and the occupants were singing vile songs. He said he fired from the window not to kill any person, but to frighten them away. The petition was taken under advisement.

DODGE HEIRESS SENTENCED TO THREE MONTHS

Jail Term Is Imposed in Back Bay Massage Parlor Case; White Slavery Charged

Mrs. Virginia Dodge Taylor, daughter of the late Dr. Irving Perry Dodge, and whose exciting life was climaxed 15 months ago by a suicide attempt in the Charles River, was jailed today for three months for running an unlicensed massage parlor.

The pretty Back Bay heiress, sued last year for $25,000 by Galen "Goslin" Gough, professional strong man who alleged injuries received when she egged him into a fight with a Negro, was arrested following complaints by tenants in the building at 25 Huntington ave.

COMPANION DEFAULTED

With her was arrested Miss Louise Sawtelle, 18, of Beacon st., Kenmore Station but Miss Sawtelle defaulted when the case was called in municipal court before Judge Zottoli.

According to court testimony Mrs. Taylor, estranged wife of George Taylor, M. I. T. graduate and descendant of President Zachary Taylor, opened the massage parlor some weeks ago with girls employed as masseurs but with men composing the bulk of the clientele.

The law, it was explained in court, cites that a masseur may treat only persons of the same sex.

Following complaints by other tenants in the building, Police Inspector John E. Howard of headquarters, Inspector Oliver L. Brennan, attached to the Board of Health, and Policewoman Irene Bombach began an investigation.

WHITE SLAVERY CHARGED

Inspector Howard told the court that the massage parlor was being used for immoral purposes and that the case really was a "white slave" case.

Mrs. Taylor pleaded not guilty to the charge of operating the massage parlor without a license, but when she was found guilty and sentenced to three months in Charles Street jail she did not appeal.

ARMY OFFICER LOSES FIGHT

Because his wife neglected their two-year-old son by going out all the time, Lieut. Henry J. D. Meyer, U. S. Army, today asked temporary custody pending hearing of a divorce filed by his wife, Dorothy A. Meyer of Greenville rd., Watertown.

At a bench conference the army officer told Judge John C. Leggat his wife showed no affection for the child and left it in care of a maid most of the time. He said he lived with his wife in the Watertown home since she filed the suit Aug. 19.

The court heard Mrs. Meyer, the maid and three other women witnesses before denying the custody petition.

BLOOM SLAIN IN FEAR OF "LEAKS"

given even more important assignments.

His activities had already put him in touch with liquor men throughout the whole East and middle West. Now he was permitted to make the contacts for the alcohol trade which had become the most profitable branch of the business of this $10,000,000 syndicate, the nation's biggest liquor crowd.

Bloom made contact for shipments to Boston and other centers where profitable cleaning plants, for removing denaturants from industrial alcohol, were running full-blast.

But bad luck was still dogging his trail—if it really was bad luck, as Bloom's friends asserted.

The Federals began tipping over some of the biggest cleaning plants in the East, places like the Woburn pillbox.

Bloom was worried and had good cause to be. Rightly or wrongly he was being blamed, and not only blamed but suspected. Suspected of double-crossing.

It was the third time Federal seizures had followed in his wake.

DEALS EXPOSED

And then Joe Bloom's luck dealt him a knockout blow.

A New Jersey bank official, who had been missing for four months, reappeared and gave Department of Justice special investigators an amazing account of how the huge syndicate had conducted its business—a story involving banks and public officials, and threatening to wreck the syndicate's business completely.

The situation was precarious is so today. Never has the syndicate been so near the brink of disaster.

The chiefs of the organization realized that one more babbler might actually write "finis" to their $10,000,000 trade.

MARKED FOR DEATH

And so one night, early in August, at the Piccadilly, Joe Bloom heard that he had been marked for death.

Promptly with $51,000 cash in his pockets he went into hiding. He came to Boston where his friends were many. He laid low.

On August 24 he was in Providence, chancing recognition by his enemies to do some business in his own behalf for his money had shrunk more than half. He had only $21,000 that day. Where the rest went may never be known.

And then he vanished

Bloom Deceived Wife by Posing as Salesman

By Staff Correspondent

New York, Sept. 27—In 18 years of married life, Joe Bloom also known as Blum, recently murdered distributor for the powerful bank-beer syndicate in New Jersey, spent less than a month a year at home it was learned today.

Astonishing details of the rich racketeer's life came to light following the Boston Evening American's exclusive disclosure Saturday that Bloom in charge of vast alcohol shipments for the Maxie Gordon Syndicate, had been killed and his body sunk to the bottom of the sea in a barrel of concrete.

For 18 years his wife, Mrs. Dorothy Bloom remained at home, conducting a household in which her husband usually spent only one night every three or four weks.

Bloom told his wife that he was a traveling man in the woollens business—in partnership with his brother, Jacob, of Boston—and she never doubted his word.

He never wrote her while he was away, never supplied her with an address at which he might be reached in an emergency, but that, too, was all right. She trusted him.

During the years they lived at 1330 Ocean ave., Brooklyn, Bloom paid the bills regularly and gave his wife $50 or $75 a week for other expenses. Their daughters, now 17 and 11, received the best of clothing and were sent to a private school.

Bloom became even more of a stranger during the past year, coming home only about half a dozen times after his family moved to a luxurious $3000 a year apartment at 275 Central Park West.

His wife saw him at 4 p. m. on August 15, when he visited her at their summer suite in the Bloomkrests Hotel, Arverne, L. I., and told her business probably would keep him away over the following weekend.

It did. As revealed by the Boston Evening American, enemies seized him and gave him a gangland execution, supposedly because the New Jersey rum barons suspected him of double-crossing them.

The body of the man who handled more than $2,000,000 worth of alky for the rum syndicate was put into a barrel. The barrel was filled with concrete and then taken to sea in a speedboat and dropped, according to a confidential story from the underworld.

The heavy bankroll Bloom always carried with him disappeared, and a diamond ring which was on his finger now adorns the finger of a Hackensack, N. J., gangster, the underworld says.

All this seems crushing and unbelievable to the wife who patiently kept their household together for 18 years.

GETS A $10,000 LETTER

When Dr. Orel F. Martin's $10,000 worth of bonds disappeared from his rooms at Hotel Kenmore seven months ago, he thought they were gone forever. Today the mail man handed him a fat envelope containing the bonds, their return being as mysterious as their disappearance. Do you wonder he smiles? (Staff photo.)

The break, occuring some time after midnight, was not discovered until opening of the store.

BEATING PERILS POLICE BAITER

Oscar Akerberg, 50, of 8 Hancock st., West End, was taken to Haymarket Relief Hospital today suffering with dangerous head injuries as a result of a clubbing allegedly inflicted by a policeman.

Akerberg, who was suffering with alcoholism, according to hospital officials, sustained a contusion on the left side of his head and a possible fractured skull.

Patrolman Edward B. Quinn of the Joy st. station said he used his club on Akerberg after the latter had struck him twice.

According to Quinn, he was directing traffic at Chambers and McLean sts., West End, when Akerberg approached him and announced he could lick any policeman in Boston.

Although Akerberg is five feet eleven inches tall and weighs 240 pounds, Quinn expressed doubt of his statement. The policeman claims Akerberg then struck him knocking off his hat. When Quinn seized Akerberg by the shoulder he claims the civilian struck him again, whereupon he used his club.

Workers Routed by Harvard Sq. Fire

Office employes in the Abbot Building, Harvard sq., were driven to the street today when sparks from a restaurant chimney ignited the roof and sent clouds of smoke through the building.

Traffic was held up for 15 minutes while firemen fought the blaze from ladders. Damage was slight.

Daily True Story

Hours of Waiting

IT WAS A FOOLISH, senseless quarrel, but each was too proud to admit being in the wrong. It ended with George saying, "I'm going to a hotel. You can stay here or do what you please. And I'm not coming back."

He [illegible] clothes into a suit case, snapped it shut and from [illegible] as he left. "I hope you'll have the decency to give me a divorce," she called after George.

Al Hastings met George the next day and was told the whole story. "You don't want to do that, George," he said. "Why, Mary and I have always said that you and Anne were the ideal married couple."

"Ideal hell," answered George. "We're through and that's all there is to it. She's going to get a divorce and that's the end of it."

LOVER EACH OTHER

"All right," Al finally said. "If you won't you won't. Anyway, have dinner with me tonight. I'll stop by at your hotel for you at seven o'clock. Wait for me, now. I may be a little late."

[illegible]

[illegible] apologized. "I got held up on some business and I couldn't get to a phone to call you," he said. "But I'll make up for it tonight. We'll have dinner together and then go to a show. I'll get the tickets. Remember now, don't make any other engagement. I'll be there at seven o'clock sure."

"I was hoping you would," said Anne. "But the truth is that I was waiting for Mary Hallam. She telephoned me yesterday and said she would come up for dinner and keep me company. But she didn't come and I spent a wretched evening all alone. She called again this morning and apologized and said she would come tonight. But she hasn't."

[illegible]

"I understand it now," he said. "Al did the same thing to me. He and Mary wanted us to make up and he realized that if we both could be made to spend two lonely evenings we'd forget that foolish quarrel and realize that we meant to each. And it surely worked."

If she'd only save the ELASTICITY that makes stockings WEAR!

SHE could easily cut down on those embarrassing runs. Other girls do. They make stockings last twice as long by Luxing them after every wearing.

With Lux, you keep your stockings elastic—so the delicate silk threads give under strain—stretch and then spring back into shape without breaking.

The LUX Way to make stockings last twice as long

Wash this 2-minute way:

1. One teaspoon of Lux for each pair of stockings.
2. Add lukewarm water, squeeze suds through stockings, rinse well.

Don't rub with cake soap. It ruins elasticity. With Lux there's no rubbing! Even stubborn spots come out perfectly if you press a few dry Lux diamonds into the dampened spot.

Avoid ordinary soaps—cakes, powders, chips. These often contain harmful alkali, which robs silk of its life, weakens threads, fades colors. Lux has no harmful alkali. Anything safe in water alone is safe in Lux.

Suggestions of Household Value

Camphor is better than salt to take stains out of napkins and table cloths before washing.

Always turn stockings [illegible] before washing, as the soiled part is [illegible] on the inside. Hang them to dry [illegible] down.

Dot the top of squash with small pieces of butter before putting it into the oven to bake. It will greatly improve the flavor.

To keep a straw hat from [illegible] brown put in a paper bag packed with sawdust before putting away for the winter.

To prevent mosquito, midget and gnat bites squeeze the juice of half a lemon into a saucer, dab any part of the body likely to be affected with a piece of cotton rag and leave to dry.

A little vaseline rubbed into the skin before exposure to the sun will prevent scorching. Olive oil is an excellent substitute.

"Anyone would think she was the one who cooked this, not me!" Aunt Julia said behind her hand to Val. "She'll be telling Miss Vollmer she made that sunshine cake, next."

"Can't, I'm too full!" George answered [illegible]

In a sudden silence Val heard Mrs. Carr [illegible] Edwina. "Run home and get the rice, will you, dear? We want to have it all ready for when they leave."

"Gee, this is swell," he said. "Betty never did have any wedding. Are you going to give away pieces of fruitcake in boxes, Joe? 'Cause if you are, I want a extra one, for my girl."

Joe's eyes were [illegible] to the clock [illegible]

"I can't go, that's all!" Val thought.

Mrs. Carr [illegible] "But we can't all get in that! I told you two cars, Joe! Vivian can sit on my lap and Edwina can hold Ruth, and you and Georgie can squeeze in with the driver, but we need seats for Miss Macfarlane and myself and—"

[illegible]

"All the goodbyes are going to be said right here," [illegible] "Unless you want it the other way, Val?"

"No—I think it would be better too—" [illegible]

[illegible]

Val transferred her hold from Aunt [illegible] to Joe. Joe was managing everything, getting her away. She clung to him gratefully.

"They won't be all alike here," he said [illegible] "A few weeks more, and you'll get acquainted with some real cold."

"It's sort of barren now," Joe said. "You know—unhomelike. But I knew you'd fix it up. Pearl Neely wanted to. She was going to have everything looking swell when you got here, but I thought you'd rather do it alone and have it your own way."

"Oh, yes, I would," Val said firmly.

[illegible]

"FIXING UP"

"That's what I thought. Pearl has wonderful ideas, though. She might help you! She teaches domestic science and knows how to do all kinds of things. You know, she makes curtains and weaves rugs—fixes up coal-oil cans to look like swell lamps—that sort of thing—"

Kim Becomes Tired of Married Life and Suggests That He and Mary Faith Part

"Let's not quarrel about her, Kim." She bent over him and laid her cheek against his smooth, blond head. "I came up here tonight to talk to you."

"You came up here to spy on me!" He pushed her gently but very firmly away from him. "And now that you've found out what you wanted to know I suppose you'll keep nagging at me until I put that little kid out of my office." His face was set to the mood of sullen anger.

"Have I ever nagged you, Kim?" She was sure she never had.

"Good lord, you started before we'd been married three days! You nagged me about smoking cigarettes. You nagged me about taking a drink. You nagged me about the Maldons. . . . You knew I liked to go to their house, but would you go there with me? Not on your life! And when I went without you, you nagged me about the wickedness of playing cards for a little money. To hear you talk, their flat was a gambling den!"

Sinking Heart

[illegible]

"I never refused to go to the Maldons, Kim," she said helplessly. "I was perfectly willing to go, so long as I didn't have to take a drink or play cards for money. I told you that. Don't you remember?"

"Yes—you're a regular dead game sport." There was biting sarcasm in Kim's voice. He pulled out his watch and looked at it.

"It's half past five," he said. "Let's go. We can finish the battle at home. It'll be a swell way to spend the evening."

[illegible]

"You said you came up here to talk to me about something," he said. "What was it? What's on your mind?"

[illegible] for a minute or two. She stood looking at the bronze doors of the [illegible]

[illegible]

"Nothing—I'll tell you some other time," she said at last.

[illegible]

"I suppose I ought to be in the kitchen getting dinner ready," she greeted them. "But it was so nice out here that I just couldn't go in."

"How about a little drive in the park, Mother?" Kim asked her, and she beamed with pleasure. It wasn't very often that he took her for a drive.

Began to Get Dinner

[illegible]

"Where's Kim? Putting the car away?" Faith asked her.

His mother shook her head. "No. He said he wasn't going to have dinner with us tonight. He said something about a business engagement that he had to keep."

[illegible] when he came in. He came [illegible] the kitchen where [illegible] Mary Faith were at work, dampening and folding down the clothes that they had washed that morning.

Pleasant Place

[illegible] and the new Dutch clock above the sink ticked with a cozy, happy sound. The kitchen was a very pleasant and comfortable place these days.

"I was afraid you two would be in bed," Kim said, putting a chair out from under the table and setting one foot up on its seat. "I want to talk to you."

Mary Faith saw him brace himself to go on. "I've been downtown in my office all evening, thinking things over," [illegible] "I've spent almost half of the little bit of capital that I had to start with, and I haven't made a cent this whole month. I haven't had a single client—not one."

"Well, I wouldn't be discouraged, Kim," [illegible] up at [illegible] folding. "What's a month? It takes time to succeed."

He went on [illegible] not spoken. "And so I've come to the conclusion that we'll have to give up this flat if I'm going to keep the office open. If we don't I'm just going to fail, that's all. I haven't the money to keep up both places."

"Why, you must be crazy [illegible] I've lived in this flat for more years than I've got fingers and toes, Kimberley Farrell. It's my home and I'm not going to break up my home for anybody! I can't. . . . Why, where would I go when I left here?"

[illegible]

"Why couldn't you go out to Garretsville and stay with Aunt Ella for a while?" [illegible] "She'd be tickled to death to have you, and you could put your furniture into storage. It would be a rest for you."

"And what about you and Mary Faith? Where would you go?"

[illegible]

"Oh, I'd get a cheap room somewhere, and I think Mary Faith would go back to Mrs. Puckett's," he said. "You agree with me that this is the best thing for all of us, don't you, Mary Faith? You and I have been married for five months and I don't believe that either one of us thinks that our marriage is a howling success."

Caught Her Breath

[illegible]

"You don't mean that—you think we ought to separate, Kim? You don't mean that you're tired of me?"

"Well, I think we're pretty tired of each other. We're on each other's nerves, and I know we'd be a lot happier if we didn't see each other for a while."

[illegible]

"Besides, I can't support you," she heard him say. "You know yourself that it's going to take every nickel I have to keep myself from starving to death for the next few months, and my advice to you is to go back to your good friend Nesmit and ask him for your old job. He'll probably be more than glad to give it to you when you tell him you've left me."

"Left you?" She stared at him [illegible] ing their lives to pieces as if he were a willful child knocking over a tower of building blocks.

"The most unlucky thing that ever happened to us was seeing each other in Armbruster's store last Christmas." He was turning now to go out of the kitchen. "If that hadn't happened, everything probably would have turned out all right. You'd have married Nesmit, and I'd have stuck to Janet."

With Dry Lips

"Janet!" Mary Faith had formed the word with dry lips that made no sound. Janet. The loyal little kid who had left the offices of McIntrae and Westover when they had let Kim out—who had followed him to his own tiny office in the Towers Building.

"You're leaving me for that girl, Kim. You think you should have married her instead of me, don't you?"

"I shouldn't have married anybody," he said violently. "And don't try to hang all the blame on her. Our married life has been a flop all along and you know it as well as I do. . . . What do I get out of it, I'd like to know? I sit all day in a two-by-four office waiting for a lot of clients who never come. I sit all evening in this flat staring at the four walls. It's a great life for a man, isn't it?"

"I'm just through," he corrected her. "I'm all through. And I'm getting out now while the getting's good. See?"

[illegible]

"Kim, you're not going out tonight? You're not going out tonight? You're not going now?"

"I sure am. I'm going to get it all over and done with before I weaken. . . . I know it's the thing to do and I'm going to do it. Besides, it's the twenty-eighth of the month. You and my mother will have to step lively if you're going to be out of this place by the first. It's only three days off."

He laid a bill on the top of the bureau. "There's fifty dollars," he said. "Make it go as far as you can, will you? When you need more you know my phone number downtown. . . . and tomorrow will you pack up the rest of my clothes and send them over to the Maldons'? They're going to let me sleep on their davenport for a few nights until I find a room. I talked to them about it tonight."

Also Has "Bulk" to Further Assist Elimination, and Iron for Blood

One of the functions of Vitamin B is to help tone the intestinal tract, and promote elimination. Now, laboratory experiments show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN contains this valuable vitamin.

In addition, ALL-BRAN brings a plentiful supply of "bulk" — which provides the "ballast" needed to exercise the intestines.

This "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is similar to that of lettuce. Inside the body, it is different from the way you see it in the package. It absorbs moisture, and forms a soft mass which gently clears the intestines of wastes. Special cooking processes make ALL-BRAN finer, milder, more palatable.

Another healthful element brought by ALL-BRAN is iron. Tests show this cereal has twice as much usable iron as the same weight of beef liver.

By GILBERT SELDES

I wonder what was in the mind of Woodrow Wilson when, overpersuaded by an enthusiast, he proposed the abolition of the salute in the Army. It never occurred to me that Wilson knew so much of what went on in the mind of the enlisted man who, in spite of a million assurances, never believed the official explanation of the salute. The episode is mentioned in General Peyton C. Barch's "The Nation at War," a book which proves that it is a good thing for a general to be a fighter. The whole book is belligerent, carrying the battle into the terrain of the enemy, especially to the very tent-flaps of General Pershing, to the detractors of Secretary Baker, to the admirers of General Wood, and to the belittlers of the Army at home over which General March had authority. The general naturally gives the official idea on the salute:

GILBERT SELDES

"Salute, You!"

"The fact is that in the Army it is just as mandatory for the officer to return a salute as it is for the soldier to salute first. It is mutually obligatory and not different in significance from the raising of his cap by a student at Princeton when the president of Princeton, Dr. Wilson, passed him.

"But the breaking down of the symbol of mutual respect between the soldier and his officer, who is responsible for feeding him, clothing him and leading him in battle, would be a much more serious matter. It was the first thing adopted by the Bolshevik soldiers, after the Russian debacle of 1917, and was followed immediately by the complete disintegration of the Russian army."

When Pershing Saluted

At that, General March omits another item which the average soldier obstinately refused to believe: that in saluting a 90-day shavetail, he was saluting the Army of the United States, the whole hierarchy of officers up to the President. The reverse of this meant that General Pershing, returning a salute, was the Army, the President and the nation paying respect to the citizen-soldier. Somehow the soldiers never believed that the respect was [illegible] mutual; perhaps because little of it existed on their side.

In my own experience it became clear that the better the officer, the calmer he was about the salute. He expected it as a formality; but on a dusky evening, when he passed you at 20 paces, and you couldn't tell his boots from the tricky leggins of [illegible], the good officer waved a negligent hand in your direction or shouted, "Salute, you bum," and passed on his way; it was the uncertain officer, the medical major just arrived in camp, who made the fuss; and you always felt the fuss was personal. The dignity of the American Government was not in question.

Not Degrading

The anti-militarists made as much of a fuss about the Army salute as the officers did, but in reverse. They thought it was degrading. Few of them, I suspect, knew the actual pleasure of being a good soldier, coming up to a snappy salute, and knocking the officer of the day dead with its smartness. Of course, there were too many officers hanging around training camps and the thing got to be a bore. My officers, seeing a company confined to a single street (because flu raged in the camp) made a little gesture the moment they saw any indication of a salute coming—and they saw few of those. Like soldiers in the front line trenches, we took the respect for granted. I know that from Nov. 11 to Dec. 23 I never raised a paw in salute; but the moment I got my discharge, I sprang to attention and made passes with my hand which positively frightened my C. O. He asked me never to embarrass him again.

The pride of young officers and the arrogance of martinets stood in the way of real friendly feeling on the subject. I have seen men stand at salute for half a minute while officers refused to acknowledge—the mutual obligation was more easily overlooked when the enlisted man could not call his officer to account.

And a word in Gen. March's ear: The breakdown of the Russian army did follow the abolition of the salute. And I once saw a man rushing for a subway train; the train pulled in right after the man g[illegible] platform. But I couldn't bring myself to believe that the man's running caused the train to arrive. The train of Russia's breakdown was in motion long before the salute was abolished.

Breakfast for Business Girl

The business girl, with that all-important slender silhouette in mind, listens with her tongue in her cheek to [illegible] on the importance of a good substantial breakfast—a necessary balance in the bank of health.

"Not for me the extra poundage that comes with fried eggs and potatoes for my morning meal,' says she—and trots gaily off on her scanty calories in orange juice, clear coffee and maybe a thin sliver of toast. And wonders why she is tired before the busy morning is half over.

We want to whisper to her that a breakfast built around a generous serving of the popular pep brand flakes will "stick to the ribs" until noon, but add not one jot nor one tittle to her weight. These bran flakes are tempting in flavor, have all the goodness of wholesome whole wheat, are energy giving and contain just the amount of bran we need. They stay crisp and fresh, protected by the inside waxtite bag sealed top and bottom. And 10 full ounces of these better bran flakes in every package. Try them with fruit or honey for variety. And they're ideal as a bedtime bite.

Powdered Soap Lessens Toil

'BOSSY'S' PLEA FREES OLD FOE FROM JAIL

Andrew J. "Bossy" Gillis, former mayor of Newburyport, showed the world he could forget and forgive when he appeared in Lawrence Superior Court today to plead for leniency in the case of John J. Reardon, 21, of Merrill st., Newburyport, who was charged with attacking him several months ago.

As a result of "Bossy's" plea, the case was filed but as the red-headed former mayor stepped from the stand he said:

"I still think I am the better man."

The trouble arose when an article appeared in the "Asbestos," a weekly newspaper published by "Bossy" Gillis, calling Reardon a "straw boss." Reardon resented the slight and went to Gillis' house.

When the door was opened by Mrs. Gillis he is alleged to have thrust her aside, and entered, striking Gillis, who was asleep on a divan, with a stick.

Gillis testified he "knew Reardon regretted what he had done."

NO LOVING WITH HIS GROCERIES

McDonald, a red-haired youth, joined Mrs. Ruby today in denials of the allegations of her husband, Norman, Winchester salesman, who is seeking a divorce in Probate Court, Dedham.

It was in "a spirit of friendship" that she went riding with McDonald to Wollaston, Mrs. Ruby declared, as she successively denied kissing, petting and love-making.

"Did you and Mr. McDonald change from the front to the rear seat after you parked there at Wollaston?" she was asked.

"No," she said, with considerable emphasis.

McDonald testified that he made no promise of marriage to Mrs. Ruby if she obtained a divorce.

The husband's brother, Wilfred Ruby of Waltham, testified that the grocery man admitted to him that he had been indiscreet, that he did not love Mrs. Ruby and that she made it very easy for him to go out with her.

"He said he was ashamed of what he had done," testified the brother.

MARTIN BONDS RESTORED

Just as mysteriously as they disappeared last March, $10,000 worth of bonds and securities, with insurance papers, were returned today by mail to Dr. Orel F. Martin of Hotel Kenmore, former director of the Massachusets Osteopathic Hospital.

Dr. Martin, in reporting this to police, revealed an attempt to obtain money from him for their restoration was made last July, but he refused the offer of return under the conditions.

The doctor lost the bonds, or they were stolen, from him on his way from the Boulevard Trust Co. in Brookline, where he had taken them from a safety deposit box, to the Hotel Kenmore. They were not negotiable.

A bank book showing deposits of several thousand dollars in the Medford Cooperative Bank was not returned, but the bank has been notified.

COUNTERFEITER SEIZED IN N. Y.

Two alleged leaders of a counterfeit ring which flooded the North End and Roxbury with spurious $10 bills were arrested in 42d st., New York, today by Secret Service agents.

The men gave their names as Frank Mario and Frank Caiola, alias "Big Frank," both of New York.

Their arrests followed information given by Harry Pappas of Brooklyn who was arrested in Boston after he had passed one of the bogus bills to a North End shopkeeper.

Gen. Foote in State Drive to Crush Out Rackets

War was declared today on collection frauds and all other rackets in Massachusetts by Maj.-Gen. Alfred F. Foote, director of the Department of Public Safety.

"If there was ever a time when the public should be protected from such methods, it is now," said Gen. Foote. "Collection and all other rackets are going to be weeded out of this Commonwealth. There is no room in our state for rackets or racketeers. I have given orders to the men in this department to smoke out every one of them."

POLICE CONFER

Gen. Foote made this announcement following a conference with Capt. Thomas Bligh, Lieut. Arthur Keating and Sergt. Theodore Johnson, who have been making arrests and harvesting evidence in the cases of the New England Collection Agency and the National Collection Agency. The head of the department of public safety is directing the state police probe of these and kindred cases.

Capt. Bligh said:

"Without discussing the cases of the Goodman brothers, one a doctor and the other a suspended lawyer who, with their collectors, are to be tried on indictments returned in Middlesex County, I don't mind saying that this alleged ring is not the only one operating in Massachusetts.

"We have our eyes on others. Our check-up shows that suspended and disbarred lawyers flock to the collection racket as a fertile field to dupe those unfortunate enough to be behind in their bills.

NEW ARREST

"Instead of calling it a fraud I look upon it as plain hi-jacking. Much the same method is used in all cases and by all crews. First the victim is induced to sign a blank mortgage in the guise of a duplicate note, articles of furniture and personal property are mentally noted by the collector, and then the strong-arm crew, generally a brow-beating pair, appears at the home, and, unless payment on an increased amount is made, out goes the household effects listed on the illegally-procured mortgage. If that isn't hi-jacking I don't know what you could call it?"

The 10th arrest was made in the collection racket yesterday. John J. Sheehan of Dorchester, one of the Goodman brothers' collectors, surrendered at the State House to Sergt. Johnson and was arrested on an indictment warrant charging him with procuring signatures with intent to defraud.

He was held for trial with Dr. A. Robert Goodman of Cambridge and Quincy, his brother, Robert A. Goodman, a suspended lawyer, of Blue Hill ave., Dorchester and seven other employes who were arraigned in Middlesex Superior Court last week.

WORKED ONLY MONTH

Sheehan is 27 and lives at 51 Wilmington ave., Dorchester. He claims to have worked for Atty. Goodman less than a month last winter.

On Feb. 3, Orville Ellsworth of Cambridge and John J. Sheehan, collectors for Atty. Goodman, visited the apartment of Mrs. Almina Anderson at 171 Hemenway st., Back Bay.

Ellsworth and Sheehan demanded payment of a bill owed by her son, Roy Anderson. During a heated argument, Mrs. Anderson, who was 65, collapsed. She was dead when Dr. Edward Cotter of Commonwealth ave. arrived.

CLAIMED FURNITURE

Mrs. Anderson's daughter, Ruth, a violin instructor, told police the men had threatened to remove furniture listed on a mortgage, including two tables, a bed, chair and a divan.

She said her mother was very much excited when the men threatened to take the household effects, and swooned after she assisted her to her bedroom. Death was due to shock. The police were called. A patrolman told Miss Anderson it was a civil matter and that there was nothing he could do.

Sergt. Louis Disessa of police headquarters investigated the case.

Sheehan and Ellsworth were arrested charged with manslaughter. Charges of conspiracy to defraud were also preferred against them and a conspiracy charge was lodged against Atty. Goodman, alleged head of the New England Collection Agency.

Ellsworth was also charged with falsely posing as a constable. In Roxbury District Court, Sheehan and Ellsworth were found not guilty of the manslaughter and conspiracy charges, and Atty. Goodman was also freed on the conspiracy charge.

Judge Palmer found Ellsworth guilty on the charge of posing as a constable and sentenced him to serve two months in jail. Ellsworth appealed and was acquitted in Suffolk superior court. Sheehan and Ellsworth are among the 10 arrested in the new round-up.

(More about the collection racket will be published in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.)

SHIP HEARS OF MISSING FLIERS

Tacoma, Wash., Sept. 28 (AP)—Mysterious radio messages reported by an amateur operator, today told of hearing from the missing Japanese good will fliers Sunday afternoon, 24 hours after they should have landed at Nome, Alaska.

The calls came presumably from a vessel in the Pacific. William G. Gunston, Tacoma amateur, said he heard garbled messages yesterday afternoon and more faintly late last night. He said the first message read:

MOVES TO KILL CURTIS APPEAL

Flemington, N. J., Sept. 27 (AP) Prosecutor Anthony Hauck said today he would move before the Supreme Court next Tuesday to dismiss the appeal of John Hughes Curtis, convicted in Hunterdon county of obstructing the search for the kidnaped Lindbergh baby.

Supreme Court rules provide an appellant shall serve notice of argument on opposing counsel 10 days before the court term opens. That time expired yesterday, and Hauck said he would serve notice today of his motion on Lloyd Fisher of Flemington, Curtis' attorney.

Curtis, Norfolk boat builder, was sentenced by County Judge Adam O. Robbins to a year in jail and fined $1000. He is now under $10,000 bail pending appeal.

SHOTS FIRED BY BOY IN CHASE

Lawrence, Sept 27. After he had tried to frighten off pursuers by firing a revolver, 14-year-old Lionel Lessard of Manchester, N. H., was captured and is in a police cell here. He is charged with attempted larceny of three pints of milk and carrying a loaded revolver.

His companion, Andre Delangers, 14, also is held on the larceny charge, while police searched the woods of South Lawrence for Delangers' nine-year-old brother, alleged to have been involved in the attempted theft.

Perfect Coffee Made in School

Boiled coffee and percolator coffee will always have their devotees, but to my mind, coffee made by the drip method is clearest, most flavorful, and most easily made of all.

And most of the members of the Martha Lee Cooking Classes who saw this kind of coffee made in our opening lesson this week seemed to agree with me. They were unanimous, too, in their praise of the flavor of the brand we used (believing that "you might as well have the best").

Here are our simple rules for drip coffee making. We use an inexpensive enamel coffee biggin, but perhaps you are the fortunate possessor of an earthenware Tricolator. Either produces satisfactory results.

DRIP COFFEE

Fill the lower section of your coffee biggin (drip coffee pot) with boiling water, to thoroughly heat the pot. Meanwhile, drop a sheet of rice paper, which comes for this purpose, into the perforated section of the biggin. Next put in the coffee, allowing a tablespoon for each cup.

Now adjust the spreaders that hold the grounds in place. Empty the water from the bottom of the biggin, set the two sections together, and fill the top with freshly boiling water, [illegible] of water for each [illegible] water has all [illegible] will have a [illegible] flavorful cof[illegible]

New Fixings for Cooking School

All roads must have led to the Martha Lee Cooking School Tuesday night and Wednesday afternoon, judging from the throngs that overflowed even the enlarged and redecorated auditorium of the Hearst Building at 5 Winthrop [illegible]. We are more than sorry we couldn't seat everyone, for we appreciate your interest in the classes and value your friendship.

But even the window sills, [illegible] and parking place on the platform failed to provide sufficient seating space. All we can suggest, if you were one of those who couldn't get a seat, is that you write EARLY in December for a reservation in the mid-winter classes, which will open Jan 3 and [illegible]

Everyone was enthusiastic at our new color scheme for the school, a soft pale sage green for the walls with black enamel dado and trim and modernistic touches of coral and silver. Many were the "oh's" and "ah's" of admiration [illegible] the lovely new d[illegible] Jordan Marsh C[illegible] The [illegible] coral and black [illegible] cornices of coral [illegible] (made under the [illegible] Mr. M. S. Abdou of Jordan Marsh Co.'s interior decorating department).

NEW CABINETS IN USE

Modernistic cabinets display the pure food products used in Martha Lee's demonstration lectures, and also utensils and appliances of interest to the progressive housewife. A new Glenwood range in green and cream has replaced our beloved gray enamel model (which by the way, is listed at $318 and is offered for sale at $50, and as good as new!) and every one admired the automatic clock device, easy-raising broiling oven and other new features. This Glenwood meets the demand of a m[illegible] priced gas range of super-efficiency, and we are already in love with it.

Our Hoosier kitchen cabinet and work tables have all been done over in ivory and green.

NEW RANGE TOO

And over next to our trusty Frigidaire is a stunning Epicure, latest triple automatic model of the Crawford Electric Range. Truly it does everything but talk! One of its most interesting features is the Speedwell Cooker which is built right into the handsome ivory and black range. Of the fireless cooker type, the Speedwell Cooker makes it possible to bake biscuits, cakes and pies, roast meat and fowl, in addition to the foods usually associated with cookers of the fireless type. This Cooker, as the oven, is controlled by the Crawford Triple Automatic Time Control which makes it possible to put your dinner in the oven, set the clock and gallop to the movies, safe in the knowledge that the heat will be turned on, and then, the dinner ready, will be turned off again leaving the perfectly cooked meal waiting for your homecoming. Another feature we love is a big warming compartment where waiting foods are kept at just the right temperature as long as you like.

Whether you secured a membership ticket for the Cooking Classes or not we DO hope you'll drop in any day and see the school and all its new equipment. There's always welcome on the door mat.

Martha Lee Suggests Some Real Beau Catchers

The opening of the Martha Lee Classes covered Sunday supper suggestions, "beau catchers," as Martha Lee called them. And it would have to be a confirmed dyspeptic who could resist the he-man's roast beef salad and orange ice box pudding served with sparkling flavorful drip coffee.

For the feminine Sunday night guest was offered chicken and [illegible] salad, a new and delicious combination of cold chicken, grapes and orange, small banana, a few salted nuts and mayonnaise. An Oriental salad proved to be flaked salmon, fluffy rice and stuffed olives, moistened with mayonnaise, garnished with parsley and served with the new wholesome salad wafers.

A chicken sandwich loaf won praise—probably because of its easy decorations of strips of pimento, slices of stuffed olives and a few minced nuts. Iced Russian coffee [illegible] Canton [illegible] were two other interesting items.

Al Sheehan Will Manage the Wilbur When It Reopens in October

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

When the most deliberate itinerant of our many playhouses, the Wilbur, opens on October 17 with Eva Le Gallienne and her Civic Repertory Theater Company, a one-time Shubert stronghold will take on all the outward aspects of a drama temple totally and completely amalgamated. The Shuberts, true to ancient tradition in the vagaries of the drama, will direct the booking, the Publix Theaters Corporation will occupy the presiding elder's chair as landlord. But it must be spoken aloud that the Erlangers will provide the working personnel. Merely a triumvirate of several anxiously interested working forces.

There will be some applause and not a few cheers when it is made known, as it is now done—that A. M. (Al) Sheehan, general custodian of the Tremont Theater in its golden days, is to become the new manager at the Wilbur, and with him, supervising the earnest task of making faithful count of what comes into the box office in coin of the realm, will be Saul Kaplan, efficient man-of-all-trades in the Tremont box office when there was something to figure upon for both attraction and the [illegible]. Keeps All Rights

Whatever others may think of its chances for theatrical exploitation, Katharine Cornell sticks firmly to the belief that the "road," as we understand the one night regions of the country, is passively hungry, at least for Rudolph Besier's "The Barretts of Wimpole Street." Acting upon this belief, Miss Cornell has announced that the play will not be released to either stock companies or for amateur performances. While Miss Cornell will not act in the play herself this season she has decided not to send a second company into the one-night stands, as she proposes to present it herself in these cities at some future time. Even the right to read the play in public is restricted.

Los Angeles, Sept. 27—Boris Karloff, whose weird portrayals have made him a box office sensation in the past year, is to have a new type of role in his next starring vehicle, [illegible] "Destination Unknown," an original story by Tom Buckingham for Karloff. They'll leave Berlin for Paris next week and from then on I don't expect to hear from them—unless they cable for money. MARKETS BUSINESS

FINANCE CAUTIONED ON POLITICAL TACTICS

By B. C. FORBES

Travel through the country, meet and mix with many people and you discover that the political kettle, long lukewarm, has at last begun to boil.

Almost everywhere the handwriting on the wall is, you find at the moment interpreted as pointing towards Governor Roosevelt's election. The Hearst newspaper poll, supplemented by the latest Literary Digest compilation is very widely accepted as depicting accurately the present state of public opinion.

Republicans are hopeful that something will develop to change the current trend. Democrats voice confidence that it's all over but the shouting.

Fanning Alarm Dangerous

This writer, who is infinitely more concerned about employment, business, agriculture and national economic well being than about partisan politics, would like to offer one word of cautionary advice to high finance. In financial circles, as everybody knows, there has been and is a disposition to stir up alarm over the prospect of a switch in the administration. As I see it, this is dangerous, shortsighted, foolish.

Suppose high finance succeeded in convincing the people of this country that recovery would be blasted by the election of Governor Roosevelt; and suppose, also, that Governor Roosevelt were elected. Wouldn't many people thus be induced to act pessimistically? And might not pessimistic action impair [illegible]?

Confidence Needed Now

My mind reverts to what happened in Great Britain. The conservative element there drew harrowing pictures of the demoralization, even collapse, of the British Empire which would, they claimed, inevitably follow were an avowed Socialist voted into supreme power. Well, that avowed Socialist, Ramsay MacDonald, did actually become Prime Minister of Great Britain. Instead of plunging Britain into chaos, Ramsay MacDonald has [illegible] earned an enviable reputation for statesmanship and is today admired by many who were his bitterest traducers.

This country assuredly needs no fanning of alarm in financial [illegible] of nervousness. Surely the more sensible attitude [illegible] would be this: regardless of the results on November 8, recovery has attained sufficient momentum to insure the continuation of improvement if all act sensibly.

If progress is to be made in reabsorbing into [illegible] the eleven millions now idle, palpably it is essential to build up confidence and to avoid inflaming distrust.

Aren't employment and prosperity more important, after all, than political maneuvering?

—STATE ST.— Hears:

That the trading fraternity was inclined to look on today's session as offering a test of the bull position. Reactionary tendencies exhibited so far are considered the normal result of an upward move that got under way too fast. As previously noted here, the bulge of last Wednesday was in the nature of a bull coup, that could not make further progress without the aid of definite bullish advices that had not been previously taken into account by the market.

Technical Position

A study of the technical position as portrayed by the averages does not find [illegible] in complete [illegible]. At the lows [illegible] on Monday [illegible] the ground gained from the [illegible] of last week had [illegible]. This, however, [illegible] Tuesday and Wednesday [illegible].

Increased Orders for Pipe Industry

While orders for cast iron pipe recently have involved only small tonnages, there is evidence of increased business because inquiries are in the market for nearly 5000 tons.

Wheat Market Role in Stock Sentiment

Because [illegible] explanation for the setback in stock prices was lacking, trading circles were inclined to blame it on the disappointing response of the markets to the administration's proposal for an R. F. C. loan to finance sales of wheat to the Orient. While this may have served more as a pretext than an excuse for [illegible] tended to [illegible] attention to the influence of the grain market on prevailing speculative sentiment.

—SPECTATOR— Says:

The market seemed to lack incentive to do better and there was enough stock for sale to put it lower.

A good deal of the selling was professional, accompanied by rumors of this and that. Neither commodities nor bonds provided anything to offset these and the rails weighted the market down with a poor performance.

Stocks look lower but should meet support today if the advance is to be resumed.

Wheat and Corn

The burning question now is wheat and whether grain prices can be put up. October is only a few days away and the word for weeks has been that October would see big markets in wheat and corn.

A leading Chicago speculator is understood to be quite bullish on wheat. Added to this is the fact hedging will be at a minimum in a few days. The [illegible] speculative belief is that the next big play is in the wheat stocks now [illegible]. The rails so far have had the edge.

Rail Action

Action of the rails suggests that it would be well to lighten up in this group on any further bulge [illegible] the rails will probably be used from time to time to give help to the rest of the market but the belief is that the cream of the move is off here.

The spread of gasoline price cutting in the East weakens the position of the oils in the [illegible]. Action of the group indicates it is not [illegible] the speculative limelight [illegible].

Quite a good deal of [illegible] on short selling was [illegible] seen. Floor traders [illegible] feel simply that if stocks [illegible] up they should go down.

Canada Steamship Lines Is Paying

Mr. Coverdale stated that on [illegible] operations to date this year and present prospects company [illegible] is assured of a better [illegible] showing for 1932 than for 1931.

* * *

General Foods Corp. today declared a regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share payable Nov. 15 to stock of record Oct. 14.

* * *

Associated Gas & Electric Co. took no action on the $1.50 [illegible] dividend on the $[illegible] preference stock due at this time. Last payment was made [illegible] on June 15.

Regular quarterly dividends of $1.75 on the $7 preferred and 87 cents on the $3.50 original preferred were declared, both payable Oct. 1 to stock of record Sept. 20.

STOCK PRICES ARE MIXED IN BOSTON

Mixed trend prevailed in late dealings on the Boston Stock Exchange today with narrow price changes ruling. Edison Electric was a strong feature advancing nearly 3 points. Atchison was around a point above last night's close. Pennsylvania was unchanged after [illegible] up fractionally.

Eastern Steamship second preferred was soft and slid back over 2 points but rallied from its low late in the session. First National Stores was lower over a point. United Fruit was a point below its last quoted price.

Gains of fractions [illegible] were shown for such issues as American Woolen preferred, [illegible] preferred, General Electric, American Telephone and New England Public Service.

Minor recessions were recorded for New England Equity, New England Telephone, Pacific Mills, [illegible] Machine and [illegible] Warren Brothers was [illegible] around [illegible] previous [illegible].

Although Boston tax anticipation notes, due October 1 to 13, 1932 are payable at the City Treasurer's office in Boston, City Treasurer E. L. Dolan proposes to make funds available in New York for payment of such notes to holders desiring payment at a New York bank. Upon receipt of request from holders at least two days prior to maturity, giving dates of notes, serial numbers, amounts and [illegible] and maturities, they will be given the name of the bank for payment in New York City.

In a play-off series with the Filene team, Houghton's captured two of the three games, winning the championship of the greater Boston Retail League, under the auspices of the Park Commission.

The first half of the series was a string of victories for the Houghton boys. The first game was with Hovey's and the game ended 7 to 6. Next Gilchrist's was crushed 33 to 3, then Thayer McNeil bowed 5 to 3. In the next game Filene's took Houghton's [illegible] next game was [illegible] R. H. H. White 7 to 4, Jordan's 7 to 2, S. S. Pierce 6 to [illegible] and finally R. H. White again 5 to 0.

This left Filene's and Houghton's alone in the [illegible] for the [illegible] championship. In the playoff Houghton [illegible] Filene's 1 to 1. Another playoff [illegible] Filene's to be the winner 12 to 2.

This called for the championship [illegible]. In the first game, Filene's cracked out a 6 to 3 victory. Houghton's then trounced Filene's 1[illegible] to 2 and took the final game 5 to 4.

The team will be given a banquet by A. W. Ackerman, vice-president and general manager of [illegible] and an ardent baseball fan.

STOCKS HIGHER, WITH MOTORS IN THE LEAD

New York, Sept. 27—After some backing and filling at the start of trading on the New York Stock Exchange today, pivotal shares advanced moderately, under leadership of the rails and motors, in a quiet and largely profesional market.

General Motors was heavily bought following publication of a ticker story that September sales were better than August's, running counter to the seasonal trend. The stock rose a point and lifted du Pont with it. Nash, Mack, Chrysler and other motor shares were better also, as were the accessory stocks.

RAILS' TONE BETTER

An improved tone in the rails likewise aided sentiment. Carrier shares rose fractions to a point or more on predictions that the make-up of the Coolidge commission to help the carriers would be announced in the next few days.

In the closing hour carriers up a point or better included New oYrk Central, New Haven, Lakawana, Union Pacific and Atchison. Delaware & Hudson about halved its early drop of 5 points. Drug, Inc., lopped off more than 2 points of its early drop of about 6 points.

At the same time point or better gains showed for United Aircraft, Western Union, U. S. Steel, Union Carbide, Bethlehem, Consolidated Gas, Chrysler, Allied Chemical, American Can, du Pont, Nash and General Motors. Auburn Auto was up over 2 points.

EARNINGS REPORTS

Utilities were firm, but not particularly active.

August earning reports for the railroads continued to show improvement over July, although the figures were naturally well below those for last year. Union Pacific reported net operating income of $1,689,612 against $2,087,067; Southern Railway, $157,327 against $963,872; Chicago Northwestern, $675,867 against $1,136,164; Burlington, $935,378 against $2,623,844, and New Haven, $545,201 against $1,438,786.

Wall Street was momentarily expecting announcement of the personnel and purposes of the new non-partisan committee which, it was forecast, would presently be set up to investigate financial and operating conditions in the railroad field with a view to recommending helpful legislation.

Carrier shares also drew buying support from indications that September car loading gains were being well held. The Burlington is expected in official estimates to show traffic of 90,000 or more cars for September, the first time that total has been reached since last March.

Special weakness of Drug, Inc., shares was attributed to the announcement that a reorganization would be asked for its subsidiary, the Louis K. Liggett Co., in case the latter could not obtain concessions on its store leases. This statement, following the recent difficulties experienced over leases by the United Cigar Stores Co., drew some selling into the chain store stocks.

The extraordinary plethora of funds now available for high grade investment was again emphasized when it became known that the Treasury had sold a 91-day issue of $100,665,000 bills at a price equivalent to an annual interest yield of less than ¼ of 1 per cent—.23 per cent to be exact.

Several months ago the Treasury was obliged to pay 2 per cent per annum for such accommodation. Another incident illustrative of easing money conditions was the quick oversubscription today of a $60,000,000 issue of Dominion of Canada 4 per cent one-year notes, which were sold at par.

AMERICAN CAN PAYS REGULAR

New York, Sept. 27 (AP)—The American Can Co. today declared the regular quarterly dividend of $1 on the common stock, payable Nov. 15 to stock of record Oct. 31.

"The volume of business," said a statement by the company, "has been running about 20 per cent less than in 1931. September shows some improvement over August. There are no bank loans outstanding, and the cash position is good.

Wholesale Prices Index Off a Point

There was only a slight change downward in the general level of wholesale prices during the week ended Sept. 24, the National Fertilizer Association states. Its index stood at 6.2, or one fractional point below the preceding week.

Textile prices, according to the index, showed greater gains, rising nine fraction points from 48.0 to 48.9. Fats and oils rose fractional points. Fuel prices dropped from 65.4 to 63.3, while automobile metals, chemicals and drugs, fertilizers and agricultural implements remained about stationary.

Net Is $17,052,093 for Commonwealth

Commonwealth & Southern Corporation and subsidiaries report for year ended Aug. 31 consolidated net income of $17,052,093 after axes, interest, amortization, depreciation, minority interest, etc., equal, after preferred dividends, to 24 cents a share on the 33,673,328 no-par common shares, against $24,859,688, or 47 cents a share, in the 12 months ended Aug. 31, 1931.

GEN. FOODS HAS GAIN IN SALES

Advance of commodity prices during the past few months was declared today to have stimulated buying of General Foods Corp. products so that in August and September to date volume has been up to last year. July was the low, with all sales under a year ago.

Some of the buying the past two months is believed to represent stocking by retailers whose inventories have been reduced to the smallest point on record.

Frosted Foods Co., subsidiary of General Foods Corp., now has in operation 400 stores and is adding 60 a month, so that by next March the company expects to have in operation 700 stores, at which point the operation of this subsidiary may go into the black. In the meantime, the addition of stores is reducing the drain on the parent company.

All of this development is taking place in New England and the Middle Atlantic states, with Rochester, Pittsburgh, Baltimore and Washington marking the outer limits of the territory.

New Haven Deficit Figures Lawered

In its report for August, made public today, the New Haven road's August deficit shows an improvement over July. Report shows a deficit of $478,533, which compares with $595,495 for July. Notwithstanding a decrease in gross revenues for the month of $2,604,391, net railway operating income shows a decrease of only $893,583 compared with last year.

For the eight months of 1932 gross revenues were $50,966,012, a decrease compared with the previous year of $17,432,151. Net railway operating income was $7,346,791, a decrease of $5,065,446.

Int. Shoe Orders Display Increases

St. Louis, Sept. 27—During the past two weeks International Shoe Co. had some peak days in volume of orders received, according to Pres. W. H. Moulton, who stated that one of the days showed the largest receipts of orders since 1929.

"Since the middle of August," he said, "International Shoe has shown an increase of 35 per cent in orders received as compared with the similar period last year."

Steel Orders in Chicago Improved

Chicago, Sept. 27—Principal steelmakers in this district report that orders, while showing no increase in size, are becoming more numerous than for some time. However, the increase in number of orders has not yet been sufficient to warrant much set-up in operations.

The district as a whole this week probably will run a shade better than 15 per cent, as compared with slightly under that level last week.

Trade Changes Are Seen by Rukeyser

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

New York, Sept. 27—The nature of international trade has been restricted by recent political developments, including the British Ottawa conference on imperial preference and also the adoption of a tariff by England.

With free trading held in check, there will doubtless be an increased effort on the part of American corporations to get inside tariff walls by opening foreign branches.

Without attempting to gild the lily, the London, Midland & Scottish Railway, of Great Britain, of which the eminent Sir Josiah Stamp is the head, attempts in its advertising to show American business interests how to evade the new blockade against the foreign label of merchandise.

Under the caption, "Mr. John Bull will listen to reason," the railroad, seeking tonnage irrespective of the flag, said:

"The 'Buy British' movement has been a godsend to England. It has forced British manufacturers to recognize the value of their own market.

"American manufacturers can no longer overlook the necessity of meeting this encouraged British competition. They must either establish their own factories in England or retire gracefully."

$1,260,000 Expenditure by Westinghouse Is Planned

Pittsburgh, Sept. 27—The Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co. is prepared to spend $1,260,000 for raw materials, supplies and development work, Pres. F. A. Merrick said. The funds are immediately available and will be expended during the next few months, he said.

"We are influenced to expand our usual purchase program at this time beyond normal requirements in the belief that the low point of the depression has been passed and that economic forces now at work will provide the stimulus to re-establish public confidence and increase business activities.

"Our commitments already made for copper cover orders for 4,000,000 pounds costing approximately $250,000. We are purchasing other basic products in excess of current business demands and are extremely hopeful that increased business activity will shortly permit further amplification of our purchasing program.

"Our refrigeration business has justified some extension of plant facilities and this work is now in progress. A substantial sum will be expended on research and development work.

"Plant repair and maintenance have been kept up at practically normal levels, throughout the low period.'

Reynolds Spring Adds Workers

Jackson, Mich., Sept. 27—About 800 workers will be recalled to plants of Reynolds Spring Co., here, between now and Oct. 15; 350 employes have been rehired this month. Since Aug. 26 Reynolds bakelite plant has been operating seven days a week on 24-hour day basis and company expects to continue this rate.

White Sewing Machine Gets Refund

Washington, Sept. 27—The White Sewing Machine Corp., Cleveland, has been refunded $137,853 for overassessment of taxes in 1927 determined by a decision of board of tax appeals, Bureau of Internal Revenue reported.

OIL LEADERS IN BATTLE

New York, Sept. 27 (INS)—A battle was on today between independent producers and the Rockefeller-controlled Standard Oil companies and affiliated units over the nation's crude oil price structure.

Recent price cuts made by Standard of New Jersey and Atlantic Refining, in which the Rockefellers have a big interest, threatened to upset the $1-a-barrel price for crude oil, achieved early this year after a long battle in which martial law clamped the lid on prolific gushers in Oklahoma and East Texas.

The independents were lining up to save the present crude oil prices. Frank Phillips, president, Phillips Petroleum Co., voiced his opposition to any cut. He echoed the recent declaration of Harry Clair, head of the new $300,000,000 Consolidated Oil Corp., that a reduction was unwarranted.

Aiding them was Amos L. Beaty, president, American Petroleum Institute, who called on producers to curtail crude output to the tottering price structure.

Action of the Standard Oil companies in petroleum circles was attributed to the fact they have reduced inventories sharply this year and would welcome lower prices. Furthermore, it was said, they feared further difficulties in mid-continent pro-ration following failure to cut output to 2,000,000 barrels a day this summer.

Republic Steel's Operations Are Up

New York, Sept. 27 (AP)—Dow, Jones & Co. reports a considerable acceleration in operations of the Republic Steel Co. It is said that the company has doubled the ingot production at its Massilon, Ohio, open hearth plant to around 25 per cent of rated capacity. This is the highest level of operations for the plant in several months.

Ohio Standard Cuts Gas Price

Cleveland, Sept. 27—Standard Oil Co. of Ohio, effective September 28, will reduce prices ½-cent a gallon on all grades of gasoline throughout its territory. With exception of localities where prices have been adjusted to meet competition, Sohio ethyl is now 20 cents, X70 17 cents and Renown green 15 cents, including tax, at service stations.

$700,000 Loan Is Asked by New Haven

New Haven Railroad has asked I. C. C. approval to borrow $700,000 from the R. F. C. for three years to be spent in repairing passenger and freight locomotives and coal cars.

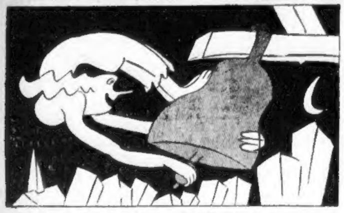
RISE AND FALL OF THE NATIONAL PULSE



News Item—Rudy Vallee's fan mail took a sudden jump after announcement of his proposed separation indicating he would soon be in circulation again. His mail slumped when his wife changed her mind.

Hear the bells ringing! List to the sirens
In hamlet, metropolis and their environs!
Is it the end of the gol darn depression?
Why is the cabinet in star-chamber session?
Millions of women show violent elation!
Rudy Vallee and his bride of a season
Threaten divorce for no very good reason.
That's why the stock market suddenly rises
And gives all the bears unpleasant surprises.
That's why the dishes are piled in the sink
That's why the President, usually serious,
Get's himself photographed smiling mysterious.
Alas! It is only a flash in the pan—
Down go the stocks like a fish on the hook.
Women return to the sink they forsook.
The President's face that registered gladness
Again is a study in consummate sadness.

RADIO FAIR UNLIKELY

Show Was Held Each Year in New York

By N. F. T.

About this time each year for quite a few of old Massa Time's milestones back there, New York has held a Radio World's Fair. Madison Square Garden in that city has, on these occasions, been the scene of what was the most colorful of all broadcasting events. Yet 1932 is apparently destined to go its weary way without such a show.

FOND RECOLLECTION

This pageant of progress never failed to produce vast throngs. There was always public patronage aplenty. Amid great fanfare an annual Radio Queen was selected. Also a beautiful Miss Television ascended her throne. Eager, curious multitudes looked on while stars from the big studios performed behind glass enclosures. Popular tenors, baritones and crooners rated police escorts, yes indeed. Radio writers from principal cities were royally entertained. Extra keys to the big town were passed out for the asking. In fact, revelry reigned. It was hoopla, hurrah boys and hey-hey! Alas, nothing of the sort is planned at present and probably won't be, as stated. You've probably guessed the reason—depression.

THREE BOYS AND A GIRL

An entirely new musical group known as the "Novelty Four" begins a tri-weekly series this evening (WNAC) between 5:45 and 6 p. m. A violin, guitar and accordeon supply the music, played by Bobby Norris, Ted Simonelli and Phil Claff respectively. Vocal selections brighten the bit, contributed by Contralto Ruth Chilton. Emphasis will be on the type of tunes known as "blue" compositions throughout.

Those Mills Brothers come to town again for a Metropolitan Theater week in person, opening Friday. Also on the same bill looms alively lad, Eddie Peabody. He was featured not long ago with Rudy Vallee. Strange is the fact concerning Eddie. Born in Reading, his grandma now residing in Lynn where he was raised and went to school. Eddie has never appeared on a Boston theater stage. Just an odd circumstance. He has in mind one or two special broadcasts while here, featuring his banjo talent.

LOCAL LATHER

Good luck to a swell chappie named Ted Roy, nominated by the "colyum" here as the logical candidate to lead the new Cocoanut Grove music men. Well, Ted annexed the job and takes his stick in hand to drop you a few orchestral bars via WNAC tonight, from 10:30 to 11 o'clock . . . While on the subject of dance band directors, be it known that Mons. Mickey Alpert is all set for duty behind Mayfair doors this fall . . . Also songstress Eleanor Talcott, she who declined tempting offers from Leo Reisman. Leo very much wanted the tall gal to appear as part of his radio and floor show group . . . Francis Riley is the name belonging to a baritone about town, and some splendid things have been figured out for him behind the scenes recently. Try to remember where you read word of popularity he's due to enjoy hereabouts . . . Announcers capable of clicking with poetry are as scarce as politicians who can't bring back prosperity . . . Fan mail is flooding the "Cap'n and Widder" characters (WEEI) since they undertook to let the air audience name that "baby they found on their doorstep" last week. Just little incidents and situations of those kind seem to start listeners writing letters by the ton. Human interest rarely fails to hit home, even if nature in the raw is seldom mild, as the cigarette folks continue declaring.

I had tried all kinds of drug store remedies without getting any relief and was very much discouraged, when I read of Dr. Walsh and the great good he was doing for suffering humanity. I had him treat me, and in a wonderfully short time my trouble disappeared and I have had no trouble since. That has been six years now. I brought a patient to the doctor's office today and I hope he will prove as successful in her case as he was in mine. Behold the Strange Bongo

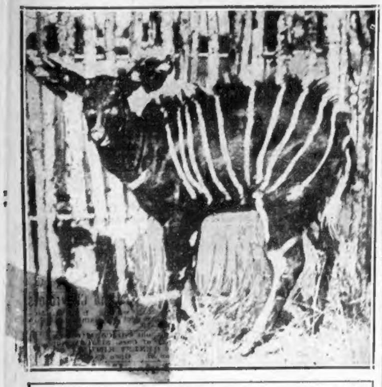
Observe How Nature's Markings Protect This Beast



A YOUNG FEMALE BONGO, RAREST OF ANTELOPES, NEVER SEEN ALIVE IN EUROPE

Naturalists are much interested in the creature put before you here. It is a very rare animal, rarest of all the antelope tribe, never seen alive in any menagerie in Europe or America.

This specimen, captured by an English officer, proves to be gentle, and is raised with the greatest care in the hopes that it may reach the London Zoological Garden alive.

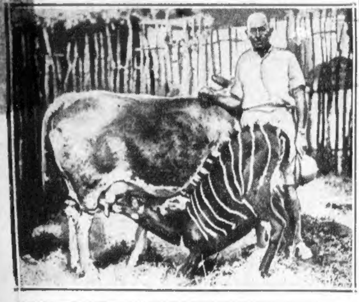
If you look carefully just under the bongo's neck in the lower picture in this column you will see the forelegs of a calf being nursed by its mother, on the other side. A busy day for the kind cow.

You will notice also the cow's hind legs are fastened together, tethered, to keep her from kicking the precious bongo. A man stands at her head to make sure that she will not swing her horns and injure the animal that she is nourishing.

The most interesting thing about these pictures, especially the first picture, is the revelation of marvelous ingenuity with which Nature protects her creatures by making it hard to see them at a distance.



A KIND COW

Nothing could be more conspicuous in a city street than a tiger with his stripes. On the other hand, in a jungle, where the yellow grass and brush stand up straight, presenting a mass of yellow stripes, a tiger is practically invisible, a few feet distant, which is unfortunate for the native of whom he makes a meal.

Similarly, this bongo, standing against the landscape in which he lives, with his stripes running perpendicularly, is very difficult to see unless you happen to run upon him, or see him in motion.

If he stands still you don't see him at all. That is why it is so difficult to catch one.

A Bank's Good Deed

National Shawmut Shows the Way

Nine months ago the Charlestown Trust Company at City Square, with 6000 depositors, was closed by the State.

Happily, the National Shawmut Bank is now taking over its assets and, on October 17, the savings depositors will be paid 50 per cent and the commercial depositors 25 per cent of the amounts they had entrusted to the bank. In excess of $1,000,000 will be available for payment at that time.

What is being done for the relief of these depositors ought to be done in principle for the depositors of all the other closed banks in this Commonwealth. The Boston Evening American has pointed out repeatedly that the existing, firm banks ought to loan to the depositors of the closed banks on their passbooks. There is not one of the closed banks that will not ultimately pay at least 25 per cent of the deposits. The going banks could well loan that amount, put money into circulation, derive goodwill for themselves and bring some cheer to the innocent depositors who have suffered all too long.

The National Shawmut is to be commended for showing the way. Its action is financially and economically sound. It will do much toward breaking down popular prejudice against banks and bankers for their coldness and lack of sympathy for those thousands of innocent victims of bank closings.

Day by Day in Paris

Paris Lacks Luster

PARIS, Sept. 27—Paris is a bit droopy. The vaunted sparkle lacks luster. A changed tempo is apparent in stepping from Gare St. Lazarre into the usual noisy millieu. Many of the corrugated shutter godowns in front of shops are down permanently, black splotches in the glitter.

Thus does La Belle France and her jetty fouettes, for the moment, suggest a toothless, worn-out frump. Yet, with all, it is Paree! Paree! and for most boys from the creek crotches there is no other European city comparable. I scribble in morning pajama'd ease on an awninged portico.

Below, under gay-topped unbrellas of a tea garden with a rosarium slit in pebbled paths, noon-day crowds chatter blithely of inconsequentials—the ever present symbol, France knows its leisure. Too much leisure, I fear, is its besetting sin. It is cut to a pattern for the E. Berry Walls of life.

In a circle of the spacious Place Vendome I met a number of Americans—Jerome Beatty and wife, the Watterson Rothackers and Mrs. Samuel Rothapfel and daughter. Hotels are not doing so well. Prices have been shaved. "For rent" signs hang over the luxurious lintels of rue de la Paix.

A pronounced back-wash of a world in turmoil is eddied among the sidewalk tables of the Cafe de la Paix. At busiest periods, they are only one-third filled. The army of waiters has become a mere corporal's guard. Ike Meltzger, ex-Brooklyn newsboy, chirped: "Battery Park at dawn."

* * *

A bewilderingly lovely lady with honey brown eyes is a hotel neighbor. She has that glacial glamour of the born aristocrat. Yet a faulty trans-Atlantic phone connection, in the middle of the night, kept us awake and bared a family skeleton. She had to yell to be heard, and I began to fear for the peace of Napoleon, in his royal crypt a few kilometers away. "You catch the next boat," she screamed, "and get that red headed huzzy out of our apartment at once."

* * *

But I'd like to etch a contrasting picture of domestic serenity. Under the sturdy porticos of rue de Rivoli, my venerable friend, Monsieur Malabier, his wife and maiden sister conduct a box-like glove shop. Their contentment, in the heart of the Parisian uproar, has interested me for years. He is a book figure come to life, the French Papa of the novels. Late last evening, walking the dog, I peered into the cozy, red-carpeted sitting room in rear of the darkened botique. Mama Malabier was reading in the twitching glow of a kerosene lamp. Papa, cat on his lap, was nodding, while the sister-in-law industriously knitted. A minute later around the corner in rue de Castiglione, a vulture of the night swooped from the shadows and threw open his coat for a furtive peep at a fan-like spread of filthy post-cards. Such are the sharp Parisian contrasts.

* * *

As gray dawn suffused it's morning pink, I watched that ancient calvacade of market wagons clump, clump, clumping toward Les Halles, tired drivers in a coil of sleep on top. On a nearby balcony was another watcher. As I stepped through the French windows, he hallooed: "Some groceries, fella!"

Listen, World!

Good Times, Bad Times

YOU'RE BOASTING about that new dress.

Elsie Robinson

It's wonderfully pretty—a gay, figured print, smartly designed, with trick trimmings. Any one who knows sewing can see at a glance that it was no small job to make that bright bit of fluff.

"And the wonderful part of it is," you cry, "it only cost $4.98. Why, I could hardly have bought the material for that amount, and it would have taken at least two days to make it. Isn't it gorgeous to be able to buy things so cheaply!"

Yes, as far as your wardrobe and mine are concerned, sister, it's probably gorgeous. But when it comes to the rest of the world, I suspect that "cheap prices" are about the worst thing that could happen.

You're amazed. You don't believe it.

"Think how many more dresses we all can have," you say. "When I was a girl, I could only have one or two dresses every season. Now I can get a new one almost every week."

That's true. You can get a new one almost every week. But how about the girl who makes that $4.98 dress? Ever stop to think about her?

"But can't she buy more dresses, too?" you say, a little tired of all this debating.

No, she can't. When you get dresses for $4.98, it cuts out that girl's chance to get any dress at all. The reduction must come out of somebody's pocket. Actually it comes out of many pockets.

Hundreds of workers and business people have to live on less if you buy a dress for $4.98. When they live on less, that cuts out their margin for spending. If they can't spend, somebody can't manufacture, and somebody can't rent, and somebody can't put money in the banks.

And so it goes, on and on, in a vicious circle; and presently, stores are standing empty and banks are failing and eleven million people are out of a job.

Then does that mean you shouldn't buy that new dress.

Not at all. Buy a dozen of them, if you can. Buy some of those that are advertised in this paper today and urge every woman you know to do so. If enough of us will buy dresses and other merchandise, AT ANY PRICE, good times will come back in a hurry.

But, as you buy, don't forget what that cheap dress really means. It doesn't mean merely a lucky break for you. It means hard times all along the line, from the little working girl to the big business man. It means depression.

"I suppose that's right," you say reluctantly. "But that isn't the only reason. I hear a lot of people say it's the fault of the workers, too. They say the workers want too high wages, and that things can't get started until they are willing to work for less; but they aren't willing."

CHEAP TIMES ARE ALWAYS BAD TIMES FOR ANY COUNTRY.

Just Folks

Child's Game

There is a game the children play:
Odd things are piled upon a tray,
Pieces of paper, dolls and blocks,
Flowers, bits of shiny tin and clocks,
And trinkets, gaudy, common, rare
At which the youngsters stand to stare.
Shortly there sounds a signal when
Out of the room they're led again
And the young minds are asked to say
Just what was stacked upon the tray.

Girls will, of course, at once recall
The doll they saw, and boys the ball.
Each will remember best and boast
The bits which pleased his fancy most
And some of them a way will find
To keep a score of things in mind,
But seldom will one manage quite
To gaze on everything in sight
Or of the trinkets, great or small
List accurately one and all.

Here on the earth is much to see
Of beauty, and a vast array
Of wonder-things both night and day
Lies open here for everyone
To stand awhile to gaze upon;
Then at the end, we may presume,
Each shall be asked in that next room
To tell, unaided and alone,
The joys which he has seen and known.

Roosevelt's Speech on Public Utilities Was Sound, Brave, Patriotic

By Bainbridge Colby

IT IS impossible within the limits of this article to do justice to Governor Roosevelt's great speech at Portland, Oregon, on public utilities.

Displaying an extraordinary grasp of this involved and far-reaching subject, he discussed it with courage, mastery and the most illuminating simplicity.

As to what constitutes a public utility, he took his hearers back three hundred years into history, showing that the duty a monopoly owes to the public of rendering good service and charging moderate tolls is not a novel concept, evolved by Western legislators and progressive thinkers of modern times, but has been imbedded in the common law for centuries, and has always been a basic principle in our theory of government.

BAINBRIDGE COLBY.

The problem in its present-day aspect is simply to make sure that the services rendered by a utility, said he, "are satisfactory and cheap enough, while at the same time making possible the safe investment of new capital."

As to regulation by public service commissions, Governor Roosevelt frankly admitted that these commissions have often "failed to live up to the high purpose for which they were created. . . . In many instances their selection has been obtained by the public utility corporations themselves, who have influenced their actions to the prejudice of the public."

* * *

GOVERNOR ROOSEVELT disclosed his own theory of the true function of the public service commission to be that it was not an arbitrator or a court, to resolve controversies between the public on the one side and the utility corporations on the other.

> "As the agent of the Legislature," he insists, "it has a delegated authority to act as the agent of the public, and it must act (as agent of the public) upon its own initiative as well as upon petition. . . . This means POSITIVE AND ACTIVE PROTECTION OF THE PEOPLE AGAINST PRIVATE GREED."

He dwelt upon the "systematic, subtle, deliberate and unprincipled campaign of misinformation and propaganda, of lies and falsehood" which the utility companies of the country have conducted, as shown by the Federal Trade Commission's investigation.

He cited the great growth of the industry which in 1931 collected over $4,000,000,000 from the users of electricity, gas, telephone and telegraph—AN AVERAGE OF $133 FROM EVERY FAMILY IN THE UNITED STATES.

The American public's huge investment of $23,000,000,000 in public utilities he contrasted with the much smaller sum of $11,000,000,000 invested in railroads and $9,000,000,000 in farm mortgages.

Although electricity has become a vital necessity to the farm, the factory and the home, we are still, he pointed out, a backward people in its use. In Canada the average home uses twice as much electric power per family as we do in the United States.

He gave the answer. It is because "many selfish interests in control of light and power industries have not been sufficiently far-sighted to establish rates low enough to encourage widespread public use."

* * *

TAKING up the statement of Senator Norris in the Senate last July, that the over-capitalization of the leading electrical utility companies, according to the Federal Trade Commission, amounted to $520,000,000, he made the telling point that the necessity of supplying profits upon this huge amount of watered stock meant an added and wholly unjust burden upon the consumers—upon the common people of the United States who "must pay a profit for all time—not for a day, not for a year, but unless some change is made in public authority, it it must be paid forever."

To correct such an intolerable abuse, to protect NOT ONLY THE CONSUMER BUT THE INVESTOR as well, who has been victimized by write-ups of capital and the sale of billions of dollars of FRAUDULENTLY-MADE and FRAUDULENTLY-SOLD securities, Governor Roosevelt enumerated the remedies he proposes.

First, FULL PUBLICITY—as to capital issues, liabilities, indebtedness, investment and earnings; publicity on stock ownership and the interests of officers and directors; and publicity as to intercompany contracts and services.

Second, REGULATION AND CONTROL of holding companies by Federal authority, and the same publicity with regard to holding companies as to operating companies.

Third, CONTROL OF SECURITY ISSUES and LEGISLATION making it a CRIME to circulate false or deceptive information.

And not least among the remedies he advocates is the abolition by law of the absurd use of reproduction cost as the basis for rate making and permissible returns to the companies on their investment. This ridiculous theory has been the friendly cover under which the companies have so brazenly manipulated their capital investment to the lasting injury both of investor and consumer.

* * *

CLOSING this memorable speech, the Governor reiterated his well-known belief that the water power of the State should belong to all the people and that title to it must rest forever in the people.

Not only does he stand squarely on this principle, but he draws a sharp contrast between his position and that of President Hoover—not only as to the latter's steady resistance of investigation, and until recently, any measure of control, of holding companies, but as to public operation of utilities. While giving due credit to private initiative and, under fair conditions, to private operation, he squarely favors public operation "where and when it is ESSENTIAL TO PROTECT THE PEOPLE against inefficient service or exorbitant rates."

It is impossible to lay his speech aside without the feeling that it is a very noteworthy utterance—a GREAT SPEECH on a great subject, SOUND IN THOUGHT, LARGE IN ITS VIEWS, BRAVE AND PATRIOTIC.

It will have a prodigious effect upon the public thinking and the future policy of the country.
